De Gaulle Welcomed

Compliments Exchanged In Speeches

OTTAWA (CP)—French President Charles de Gaulle arrived Monday night for a four-day state visit to Canada and was greeted with a Canadian call for full consultation in all vital NATO decisions. (See also Page 2.)

The general, making his first visit here in 15 years, immediately responded with a compliment to Canada as a vital link in the chain of American-British-French solidarity.

SPECIAL JET

Gen. de Gaulle arrived by special Air France Boeing 707 jet airliner, after a 8½-hour direct flight from Paris. He was accompanied by Madame de Gaulle, making her first visit to Canada.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, in his welcoming speech after a 21-gun salute and guard of honor greeted the presidential party, departed from his prepared text to say:

ONLY IN UNITY

"Only in unity and in the closest of co-operation, with the fullest of consultation, will NATO become that unifying force on behalf of freedom that it is our desire to achieve."

The French president said that after being in the United Kingdom, and before going on from Canada to the United States, his visit here was "as it were, a chain between free peoples."

SO DANGEROUS

"At this time, which is so important—so dangerous, perhaps—for the world as a whole, it is essential to come here to renew contact with the government and the people of this dear and strong and vigorous Canada."

He concluded his remarks, all spoken in French, with the declaration: "Long live Canada, long live France, long live the free peoples!"

DEAR TO CANADA

Governor-General Vanier, who was Canadian representative at Gen. de Gaulle's Free French headquarters during the Second World War, greeted him as the personification of the France that is dear to Canadians.

"In these days of unquiet peace the traditional bonds of friendship and of kinship joining our two countries have been further strengthened by over 10 years of close association in the North Atlantic alliance," the governor-general said.

SYMBOL OF FRANCE

Mr. Diefenbaker welcomed Gen. de Gaulle as "the architect and symbol of a vibrant France."

Mr. Diefenbaker said Canada was happy to welcome the president on his first visit since 1945. Many changes had taken place since then.

"One change that has not taken place is in the esteem and love of the Canadian people for the French."

Then, in French, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"We welcome, both you and Mme. de Gaulle."

'Well-Trained Parrots' Turned Out by Schools

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Nova Scotia deputy minister of education said Monday Canadian schools are being hamstrung by a super-abundance of courses and are merely turning out "well-trained parrots."

Dr. H. P. Moffatt told the British Columbia Teachers Federation at its annual convention:

"We seem to be trying to develop the talents of all students simply by adding more and more courses and more years to the school curriculum. Teachers are crying out to teach and we continue to hamstring them with imposed courses."

Dr. Moffatt said Canadians should take a hard look to see whether they are getting the best value for the money they are spending on education.

Canada's education costs, he said, now are more than $1,000,000,000 a year, and only $500,000 of this is spent on educational research.

He said great amounts of money are being wasted by an inefficient system of grants.

Shiftless Grasshopper May Have Right Idea

TORONTO (UPI)—When they hear the fable about the ant and the grasshopper, the ant worked while the grasshopper sang, most people automatically stick up for the ant. But an educationist said yesterday that maybe the grasshopper sets the better example.

Dr. R. G. Taylor, of Edmonton, Alta., told the physical education section of the Ontario Education Association that there is no evidence in the long run that people should devote themselves to providing for tomorrow.

"What did the ant achieve," he asked, "except more ants?"

On the other hand, he argued, the singing grasshopper was expressing itself creatively, and therefore devoting itself to experiencing

Dr. Taylor said physical education in schools should be aimed at preparing children for creative lives and keeping them from the pursuit of material comforts.

Exposure to physical stresses and strains, and learning self-control, he said, are helpful in this respect, whereas to protect children too closely is wrong.

Highway Vanishes

STK. ADELE, Que. (UPI)—Over 100 feet of the new Montreal-Laurentian Highway vanished Monday before the eyes of startled motorists leaving in its place a gaping crater.

Police blamed the collapse on rapid thawing because of high temperatures and heavy rain.

SEATTLE (AP)—Herbert Holland has keys to all the doors in the Kenneth Hotel. He's the manager.

Holland selected the right key, unlocked the elevator door and stepped in Monday. The door was on the second floor, the elevator cab was on the third floor, and—Holland landed in the basement—40 feet down. He escaped with bruises.

Hearing Today

Expert Joins Rebrin Case

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. Morris C. Shumatcher of Regina, a prominent civil rights lawyer, has agreed to act as head counsel on behalf of University of British Columbia lecturer Irene Rebrin, it was announced Monday night. (See earlier story on Page 26.)

Making the announcement, lawyer Gordon Dowling said Dr. Shumatcher was expected to arrive from Regina Wednesday. He said Dr.

Shumatcher had expressed great interest in the case as a matter of civil liberty.

A court hearing in the case of Miss Rebrin, currently detained at immigration department buildings here and facing deportation as a security risk, is scheduled for today.

It is expected, however, that an adjournment of at least one or two days will be called.

During the hearing before Mr. Justice T. G. Norris, the immigration department will be required to show why a writ of habeas corpus should not be issued to provide for Miss Rebrin's release.

Miss Rebrin's lawyers will also seek a writ of certiorari. Dr. Shumatcher is a former legal adviser to the Saskatchewan government. Since his graduation from University of Toronto and studies at Harvard University he has given special attention to civil rights cases.

Referring during a press conference to a letter informing Miss Rebrin that her case would be taken up by the United Nations high commissioner for stateless persons, Mr. Dowling said this could lead to representations to the Canadian government.

Father Still Hoping

DUNCAN — A rising young Victoria scientist with prospects of a bright future in astronomy was lost in the swollen rapids of the Cowichan River yesterday as he and a brother tried to shoot through in a canoe.

While police were preparing to resume a search this morning for the body of Joseph Daniel Francis, 24, of 3085 Colquitz, the young man's father, S. M. Francis, 4891 Prospect Lake Road, was clinging to the hope that his son might have escaped as he did once before.

SAW BODY

But the missing man's brother Edwin, 35, of 3930 Hobbs, told police he saw what appeared to be Daniel's unconscious body being tossed about in a whirlpool.

Edwin Francis said their 19-foot canoe overturned several miles below Skutz Falls.

Both men clung desperately to the overturned canoe as it was washed into an eddy and towed under by a whirlpool, police said.

The boat finally shot out with Edwin still clutching the side.

The water was so turbulent police refused to allow two skimmers into the river to search for the body. A long, narrow river boat, owned by Arthur Hancock of Lake Cowichan, will be used in the search today.

FIVE MILES

The survivor said he and his brother had shot the rapids for about five miles near Duncan several times before, but that they had never used the canoe before.

The accident occurred about 1 p.m. after the brothers drove here in separate cars. One car was left near Duncan. The other, with the canoe on it, was taken to Summit Road near the river.

Daniel Francis worked as a technician at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Saanich. He was married and the father of a one-year-old son.

Dr. Andrew McKellar, assistant director at the observatory, said Francis was highly regarded by his associates, both as a scientist and as a person.

He was educated at Victoria schools, Victoria College and the University of B.C.

NO STRANGER

Young Francis was no stranger to the river and knew its perils.

Friends recalled that he and another brother David, formerly a reporter for The Daily Colonist, had been thrown into the churning waters once before, in 1958, when they tried the same treacherous stretch in a canoe. They were able to swim out of the clutching whirlpools that time but they lost their canoe.

Six Killed

Korean Police Fire on Crowd

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Thousands of anti-government demonstrators surging toward President Syngman Rhee's palace were repulsed yesterday by 45 minutes of police rifle fire.

The mob of university students and townspeople retreated after more than a score were hit by police bullets.

Students claimed six of their number were killed, but this could not be confirmed immediately.

The police opened up with rifles after the front ranks of a crowd estimated in the thousands crashed over a barbed wire fence several hundred yards from the palace. Rhee was believed inside.

It was the second successive day of demonstrations in the capital protesting the March 15 presidential election, which the opposition Democratic party has charged Rhee's government rigged.

Three demonstrators were seen to fall in the first burst of gunfire and were carried away. More than 100 rounds were fired at the crowd in the first volley, and sporadic shooting continued.

Earlier, police, with clubs swinging, scattered 250 high school boys protesting the March 15 presidential elections and a subsequent ban on demonstrations.

Macmillan Attacked In Dropping 'Streak'

LONDON (UPI)—The Labor opposition and some Conservatives yesterday turned their fire on Prime Minister Harold Macmillan for his government's decision to drop its nuclear missile program.

Britain abandoned its $182,000,000 "Blue Streak" missile last week and was expected to seek new American rockets for its defences. American Thor's already are stationed here.

But Macmillan faced attack from two sides on the Blue Streak program, which had been a symbol of prestige and independence among Britons.

Labor made a motion of censure charging the government with wasting tens of millions on the project and with general mishandling of defence. The motion will be debated April 27.

At the same time, many government supporters were reported deeply disturbed that Britain may abandon its independent nuclear deterrent entirely and rely solely on American atomic and hydrogen weapons.

A complicating factor was the demand to do away with nuclear weapons entirely, as expressed by the 100,000-strong rally in Trafalgar Square yesterday, the biggest since the war.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

There are new ideas stirring in the United States and the intellectual climate is changing before our eyes. The latest sign in the wind is a brilliant article by Kenneth Keniston in "The American Scholar," the Phi Beta Kappa magazine.

Mr. Keniston is 30 years old, was a Rhodes scholar at Oxford and is now lecturer in sociology at Harvard. He writes about "Alienation and the Decline of Utopia."

He starts with the fact that many Americans, particularly young people, feel alienated and unhappy. They resent the conformity, the suburban life, the mass culture and almost everything else around them, but don't know of anything better to put in its place.

Something Needed

These young people protest that there is "no longer anything to protest against." They want "something better than this" but can't define the "something."

What's missing, says Mr. Keniston, is a new utopia, an image of a better world, an ideal state of affairs to believe in and work for. They're unhappy now because all utopian thinking has been discredited.

Escape Through Art

As to modern art, he feels that "there is a direct relation between the decline of political ardor and the rise of the arts." In other words, he sees our modernistic, "private" art as an escape route for those who can't find a social movement to work for.

"Men," he writes, "must be roused from their disaffection and indifference by the prospect of a world more inviting than that in which they now apathetically reside.

"Ordinary human courage is needed. Men must commit themselves for new utopias."

There is a new ring to all this. Thanks to Mr. Keniston for saying it.

Old Generals Toast Canada and France

OTTAWA (CP)—The affection of Canada and France was toasted in champagne Monday night by two old generals, one the president of France and the other the governor-general of Canada.

Maj.-Gen. Georges Vanier raised his glass at a Government House state dinner "to the greatness and happiness of France."

Receiving the toast was Gen. Charles de Gaulle. The governor-general spoke from a long association with France.

He won the Legion of Honor in 1917, was Canada's representative to Gen. de Gaulle in London in 1943 and in Algeria in 1944. He was ambassador to France until his retirement in 1953.

In his toast, Gen. Vanier recalled two proud moments for him in the Second World War.

The first was July 14, 1940, in London "when to the strains of 'The Marseillaise' I saw you inspect the first elements of the Free French forces, the beginning of your mighty effort."

BEAT FAST

"Four years later on Armistice Day, in war-torn Paris, my heart responding to the French blood in my veins, beat fast as I saw you and Sir Winston Churchill side by side."

He said Gen. de Gaulle is a living reminder that men are more important than things.

"Twenty years ago, in a moment of physical defeat, you spoke out to save France's honor, then again two years ago you answered the call of your people. For this you will be honored as one of the great men of history."

Red Trade Outlook Rosy

Canadians Impressed On Visit to Russia

LONDON (Reuters)—Canadian Trade Minister Gordon Churchill said over Moscow radio Monday that he expected Soviet-Canadian trade to increase considerably as a result of the new trade agreement between the two nations signed in Moscow.

The pact obligates Russia to buy from Canada every year double the dollar value of goods that Canada buys in the same period from the Soviet, up to $25,000,000 yearly in Soviet purchases.

Churchill expressed his and his delegation's thanks for the warm and friendly welcome given them in Moscow. He said the progress achieved in the Soviet Union had greatly impressed them. Churchill added: "We hope that the development of Soviet-Canadian trade will help to increase that progress. We think that the outlook for Soviet-Canadian trade is good and it is very important that we get to know each other better."

"It is essential now that Canadian businessmen should meet representatives of the Soviet trade organizations and find out what they can buy and sell to each other."

Churchill and the Soviet foreign trade minister, Nikolai Patolichev, signed while Soviet Churchill said he had invited Patolichev to bring a group of Soviet trade experts to Canada.

400 Seized To Head Off Work Strike

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI)—Police yesterday raided a shantytown to arrest 400 black Africans and fanned out in a show of force in other Negro areas to try to head off a threatened stay-home strike by Negro workers.

Two police officers, both Negroes, were beaten by fellow Negroes, but this was the only violence in the racially tense country. Police said their arrests were carried out peacefully.

BLOOD FLOW

There was danger that blood would flow today should Negro Nationalist leaders succeed in staging a large-scale stay-home strike against white supremacy despite a ban on such a walkout.

Police said they seized about 400 "trouble makers" and "gangsters" in the East London Negro area, 500 miles south of Johannesburg.

Police insisted that those arrested were mostly "intimidators" who might try to force black Africans to stay home who otherwise might go to work. Bootleggers were among those arrested on the theory that alcohol might inflame the Africans who are forbidden such beverages by law.

POLICE BEATEN

At Port Elizabeth a Negro police sergeant was beaten as he headed for work. Another policeman was attacked in another area. Six Africans were arrested for the beatings.

Police insisted those arrested were "isoties" (hoodlums) and riff-raff who might harm fellow blacks if they ignored the strike call of the Nationalist congress.

One indication that white officials feared the strike was that they had sent a large force of police to the area.

South African 'Exile' Arrives in Britain

LONDON (Reuters) — The self-exiled editor of a Liberal South African magazine arrived here yesterday and said he plans to continue publication of the periodical "Africa South" in Britain.

Ronald Segal, 27-year-old white South African, fled from his native country early this month during widespread arrests of Liberals under current emergency law. He said he left because he was certain he would be arrested.

Other developments:

• An Anglican bishop who fled South Africa fearing arrest said in an Easter message published in Johannesburg that the present structure of South African society is "dishonorable and intolerable."

• A "whites-must-go" campaign has begun among the 2,000,000 Africans living in the vast Transkei reserve in eastern Cape Province.

The first move to get the 23,000 whites out of the territory will be made when the Transkei Territorial Authority opens meetings April 26 at Umtata.

March to Trafalgar Square

More Than 100,000 Mass For 'Ban the Bomb' Rally

LONDON (UPI) — More than 100,000 persons—largest since VE-Day—gathered in Trafalgar Square Monday to demand that Britain scrap its nuclear weapons.

The massive rally climaxed a silent 53-mile march by 40,000 "ban the bomb" demonstrators.

A virtual cross-section of British society — beatniks to clergymen, housewives to actresses—were in the four-day protest march that began at Aldermaston, Britain's nuclear research station.

SEVEN MILES

The march, sponsored by the committee for nuclear disarmament, stretched for seven miles at one time.

In the parade were an elderly man who pushed his wife in a wheelchair for the entire 53 miles and a 10-year-old girl who explained that she marched because she "did not want to get killed."

Absent was the eccentric exhibitionist fringe with which some critics had identified the sponsoring group in the past. Even the beatnik students had carefully trimmed their beards and hair.

Thousands lined the route to cheer and applaud. The curbstone jeering of previous years was absent. More than 50,000 persons were waiting to welcome the marchers as they poured into the square.

At the head of the column were organizers of the march — Canon John Collins of St. Paul's Cathedral, actress Peggy Ashcroft, Labor MPs Sidney Silverman and Emrys Hughes, historian A. J. P. Taylor, author Richie Calder,

Geneva Talks Resume

GENEVA (Reuters) — The deadlocked East-West disarmament conference resumes today with little progress expected between then and the next adjournment, April 29 to June 7.

The present recess of four days was for the Easter weekend.

The long adjournment coming up after nine more working sessions of the 10-nation conference will put the talks out of action during the East-West summit meeting starting in Paris May 16.

The Geneva conference likely will have virtually no progress to report to the Paris meeting. Since disarmament will be a major topic at the summit, the delegates here probably will get new orders after the summit.

Increased School Grants

WHILE everyone concerned seems to be pleased with the extra money allotted to school districts by the provincial government for the new fiscal year, gratification is tempered by the knowledge that the fundamental problem facing the municipalities remains unsolved. It is supposed to be bad form to look a gift horse in the mouth, but the plain fact of the matter is that the increase in school grants is a palliative only—and one which it is hard to dissociate from the fact that there is an election in the offing. The government had to do something to save this year's local taxes from provoking public revolt.

The government has not modified the provincial-municipal formula for financing school operation. What it has done is to up-grade slightly the basic salary scales of teachers, by $400 per annum per teacher; so that the grant to each district is increased by multiplying $400 by the number of teachers on the staff.

This is belated recognition that the salary scales on which the Province computes its grants to school boards is out of touch with reality and has been for years. But it still fails to bring the grants into line with what the boards have to pay to their teachers. In Greater Victoria's case actual salaries this year will be far above the provincial scale even with the $400 added; and other boards in the province are in the same position. The government knows perfectly well that local boards' control over salaries exists in theory only and that there is none in practice. The local authorities are saddled with the ill effects of weakness in the provincial labor code.

Defects in the school finance system are not going to be satisfactorily repaired by this sort of patchwork. Nothing but reconstruction will do the job properly. It is now some 15 years since the formula was overhauled thoroughly. If the government wishes to ingratiate itself with the municipalities and their taxpayers, who make up 90 per cent of British Columbia, before election day it would have more success through submitting the issue for review by an impartial commission.

Commendable Enterprise

ESQUIMALT Municipality is showing fine enterprise in undertaking to build an ice arena, and in so doing it will deserve the thanks of the combined Greater Victoria area. This additional amenity will complement the City's Memorial Arena and fill a great need. The growth of the Victoria district has made it impossible for the latter to cater fully to the skating demands of the community and another ice surface will relieve the pressure on the Blanshard Street rink.

What is specially pleasing about the project is that Esquimalt will do it on its own. Unlike so many other projects there will be no appeal to the general public for donations; the municipality will foot the bill. In this respect it will follow the example of the City, which built the Memorial Arena with civic funds. The Esquimalt arena will be financed by money bylaw on a normal municipal basis, once the ratepayers have approved the project and there is no reason to doubt that this will be forthcoming. Enthusiasm for the project runs high in the municipality, and the success of a second ice arena seems assured. The navy is bound to patronize it fully, and of course it should be a boon to the Greater Victoria area as a whole. There is an advantage in the fact that skating amenities will thus be dispersed and not concentrated in one section of the city. As a stadium for the presentation of events other than ice functions, also, it will increase the facilities of Victoria.

A second ice surface for this community has been talked about for some time, and various suggestions made about building one. It has been left to Esquimalt to go ahead with the idea, and the municipal council is to be commended for its initiative. It is undertaking something of value to Greater Victoria as a whole and that is to its credit.

He Leaves a Rich Legacy

THE death of Mr. Bruce A. McKelvie in Victoria on Sunday, at the age of seventy, deprives newspaper circles of an intimate, loyal friend, and British Columbia of one of the best of its lifelong historians. Probably next to Mr. James Morton, of this city, in his length of continuous connection with news publishing in B.C., Mr. McKelvie was without question one of the best-informed writers on the early times in the province. His speciality was Indian lore and there were few, if any, authorities who had a richer store of knowledge on which to draw in this field. Most of his books were devoted to the arts, customs, skills and daring of the white man's predecessor on this coast. Together with voluminous other writings, today they comprise a rich and abiding legacy from an acute observing mind.

Managing editor of The Daily Colonist at one period, "Pinkie" McKelvie, as he was affectionately known in newspaper circles, will long be remembered by colleagues in nearly half a century of active journalism. He was a warm friend, a delightful companion in any setting or on any news beat, and the stamp of man who left a lasting impression on all who had known him. His good nature and generosity were proverbial, and his many secret acts of benevolence could never be traced from his lips.

With the passing of Mr. Bruce A. McKelvie the newspaper world has lost an outstanding and devoted veteran, and the province one of its most valuable historians. To his widow and family at Cobble Hill will go the heartfelt condolence of his legion of admirers and friends.

Interpreting the News

Some Meeting of Minds

By JOSEPH MACSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IF the side-by-side disarmament conferences in Geneva can be called brother and sister, next month's summit conference in Paris will be the big daddy.

It has been 18 months since the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain began their intermittent talks in Geneva on halting of nuclear tests, and they have reached a measure of agreement.

It is just over four weeks since a 10-nation disarmament committee, including five Western and five Communist countries, began total-disarmament negotiations in the same Geneva building, and it also has made some progress in a general way. Canada is a member of the committee.

Because both conferences were created by the great powers, they have operated increasingly in the shadow of the summit meeting which will begin on May 16; bringing together President Eisenhower, Premier Khrushchev, Prime Minister Macmillan and President de Gaulle.

It is in disarmament that authorities see the greatest hope for tangible progress at the summit. Canada's External Affairs Minister Howard Green has said that a nuclear agreement, for which there seems a "good chance" might provide impetus for a pact on the more difficult aim of general disarmament.

Western statesmen have repeatedly cautioned against expecting something magical to emerge from the summit. They hold out the likelihood of a series of conferences.

Except in the nuclear conference, East and West have hardly touched specifics at Geneva, but in principle, both sides advocate comprehensive disarmament, a control and inspection mechanism and a cessation of nuclear tests.

In the nuclear field, they have agreed on nearly 20 articles of an unfinished treaty; providing for a complicated world monitoring and control system, manned by thousands of men stationed at some 180 posts.

The Russians have come over to the Western view for on-the-spot checks to hunt down suspected illegal nuclear blasts; but not on how many such checks could be made annually, or by whom.

Tentative agreement has been reached for other potential nuclear powers, especially France and Red China, to be included in the control system, along with Britain, Russia and the U.S.

Thinking Aloud

Gerald Waring

... of shoes and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

NORMALLY I skip over feminine fashion items for the good reason this is a realm that bedevils a man's reason, but the conjunction of "women" and "mothballs" in a Maclean's headline arrested me to attention. For a moment I fancied it meant that women were being put away in mothballs and the implication of this was so vast I couldn't help being curious.

I need not have been alarmed; it is only women's suits that are going into mothballs. Women themselves will still be around. The future of the race and of the adornment of civic streets is still assured. Can you imagine, by the way, Douglas Street inhabited only by males? Man though I be, I must confess this would be a drab prospect indeed.

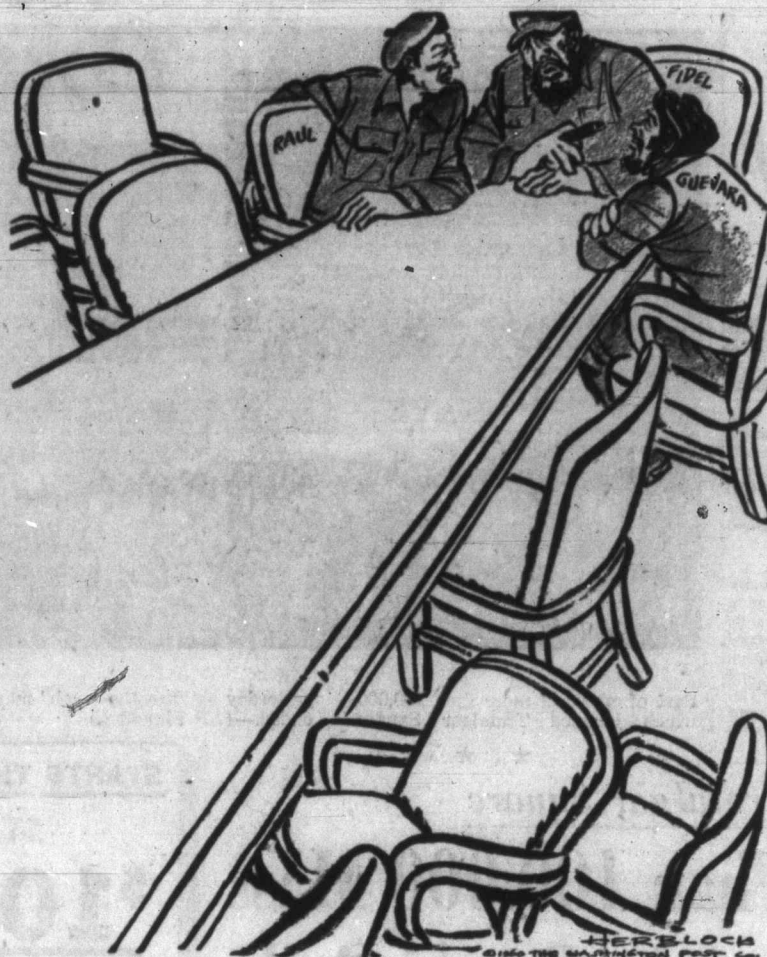

Frankly, though, I was puzzled by the news that women's suits were passe. It seems, if I am to believe one Toronto fashion designer, that even old ladies won't wear them any more. I rather suspect he is beating the drum for his latest design but his remark is a reminder that among the fair sex age is no bar to style. Once it was that ladies succumbed to the years by dressing accordingly, but now one must see her face to tell a grandmother from her granddaughter. Douglas Street is all the brighter thereby, however, and I am not bent on denigrating grandmas. After all, the odd one reads this column.

But I gather that the thing this year is what a mere man can only call a touch-and-go garment; a loose drape that does not confine the figure. So the man says—why, incidentally, don't women design their own clothes?—in astonishing words. I had always thought that contour was most important to women, but he affirms they desire something "almost without shape at all." I might have known better than get into a discussion of this kind.

I have a sneaky feeling, nevertheless, that the suit per se is not going into mothballs for ever, even though this Torontoian says that's where it will stay for good. Remembering that hemlines and necklines go up and down in bewildering but inevitable sequence, and that today's V-necks are round ones tomorrow, I wouldn't mind betting that the suit will reappear. The one sure thing about feminine fashions, if an ignorant might venture an opinion, is that they go in constant cycles.

Perhaps the most intriguing aspect of the Maclean's style note, however, is the declaration—by another man, of course—that "co-ordinates" are the answer to a woman's prayer. I understand this has to do with having a jacket, a couple of skirts, two blouses and a "weskit." Then a girl can ring the changes and appear like Venus on all occasions.

I would be more impressed with this did I not know that professional linguists have their own choice—and weird—patterns. Reflect on the verbal television marvels of cigarettes, detergents and cosmetics and you appreciate what I mean. Language belongs now to Madison Avenue. For example, it has always seemed to me that milady has "co-ordinated" her clothes in a manner that could scarcely be improved on and that she had nothing to learn about "co-ordinates." But then probably that just shows how much this writer has to learn about women's fashions.

"Who would have thought that the revolution contained so many traitors?"

Missile Muddles

By MARQUIS CHILDS

THE so-called defence issue has largely vanished from sight if only because the military hero in the White House has said repeatedly that he knows more than anyone else in this nuclear-electronic age about America's security and how to achieve it. But there is just a chance that it may be revived in connection with a decision out of the Pentagon that, in the United States, though not in Canada, was largely lost in the sweep of the news. This was to cut back almost to zero the development and production of the Bomarc air defence missile. Some estimates put the amount already spent on Bomarc at $3,000,000,000.

Senator Henry Jackson (Dem., Wash.) says that when the military construction bill comes before the armed services subcommittee he will demand to know why the Bomarc and its allied warning system, SAGE, are being abandoned after such a huge investment. He points out that Bomarc sites on the West Coast, each costing on the average $13,000,000, are to be abandoned.

They will stand, he says indignantly, as monuments to a colossal error in judgment, to put the kindest interpretation on what has happened. Among them are the Payne Air Force Base, near Everett, Wash., 44 per cent completed; Camp Adair, Oregon, 67 per cent completed; Travis Air Force Base near San Francisco, 25 per cent completed; Vandenberg Air Force Base, California, 44 per cent.

The reply of the "truth squad" in the office of the secretary of defence is, in effect, that development of the Bomarc was justified on earlier intelligence estimates of the number of manned bombers to be produced by Soviet Russia. The new intelligence estimate radically downgrades this number and it credits the Soviets with much greater accuracy in long-range missiles than had previously been assumed.

The total amount that will have been spent on Bomarc-SAGE, according to the defence department memorandum, is $3,700,000,000. For this there will ultimately be eight operational Bomarc bases in the East and on the U.S.-Canadian border, plus a warning system "ready to serve in time of war in the incredibly difficult task of sorting out enemy bombers coming in to attack..."

The unofficial intimation out of the Pentagon is that Senator Jackson has been one of the principals pressuring for the continuation of Bomarc. The Boeing plant producing and developing this missile means a large payroll in Seattle, in Jackson's home state.

Insisting that he has never at any time applied pressure, Jackson points to the statement of the military construction subcommittee nearly two years ago when efforts were made to get a decision out of the defence department as between Bomarc and its army competitor, the Nike-Hercules.

"It is the committee's firm and unanimous opinion," said a report issued in July of 1958, "that decisions must be made to eliminate duplication, or otherwise the annual cost of the defence budget will require increases beyond all reasonable proportions."

With the fierce rivalry between the two missile systems, Boeing began a campaign of newspaper advertising to resist any cuts. Prompt newspaper retaliation came from Western Electric and the Bell Telephone laboratories involved in the production of Nike-Hercules.

Cuts in the far more modest program were resisted by Senator Sam J. Ervin Jr. An important payroll in his state (North Carolina) was involved and he served notice on the military construction subcommittee that he would publicly challenge any attempt to eliminate Nike-Hercules.

For as long as a year and a half to a year it was widely said that the Bomarc, an air-breathing missile, would be obsolete by the time it came into full production. In overall justification of the vast expenditure on Bomarc the defence department argues that with the rapid shift in weaponry it is often necessary to develop systems that will be obsolete before they can be proved out. Research and development still continues on Bomarc A, big brother to Bomarc B.

That argument may be valid. But this looks like such a beautiful example of duplication, commercial rivalry, and regional competition that a really thorough, objective investigation might help the poor confused citizen to find out the facts.

The trouble is that he listens on the one hand to President Eisenhower's repeated affirmation that he knows best and on the other hand to the critics who seem to have a political or a personal stake in their attacks. The end result is bewilderment and, finally, indifference.

Reports from Ottawa

PRIME Minister Diefenbaker seems to fear that the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London May 3 could be the PM's conference to end all MP's conferences. Literally.

"I fear for the future of the Commonwealth," he said, "if... the prime ministers' conference should become the judge and jury of the conduct of member nations."

He expressed this fear after weeks-long reluctance to speak up in strong condemnation of the South African government's racial policies—a reluctance that has disappointed and disturbed liberals of all parties. In this vital matter of principle, of the defence of those human rights of which he has long been an acknowledged champion, he turned his back on opportunities to give Commonwealth leadership. By inference he even criticized the British Commons for supplying that leadership.

He reminded me of a great man who, when faced some 15 years ago with demands for self-government from various peoples of the empire, declared that he had not been appointed the sovereign's first minister to preside over the dissolution of the empire.

It is inconceivable that this conference—the eighteenth in a series of imperial and prime ministerial parleys that started in 1926—can be described as a success if it fails to face up to the most serious issue which at the moment confronts the Commonwealth. For events in South Africa besmirch the name of British justice, which is a main foundation stone of the nations that form the Commonwealth.

AT a time like this when we are all deploring what the white South Africans are doing to the native population of their continent, it is embarrassing to be reminded of what we did—and to some extent are still doing—to the native population of this continent. The true story of the treatment of the North American Indian by the white invaders of North America is unknown to the vast majority, say 95 per cent, of the population of the continent today. It is a story of unrelieved tragedy and numerous instances of utter barbarity. In the United States there are officially documented accounts of the slaughter of entire encampments of Indians, men, women and child. But it is the bland attitude of governments, representing the public opinion of their time, towards the chivvying of the Indians out of one area after another, and their final incarceration in "reserves," which were apartheid in everything but name, that is the most insufferable part of the story. We haven't a leg to stand on.

Critics are frequently assailing Germany for failing to teach their school children the truth about Hitler and the Nazi regime. In how many of our schools is taught the true story of what happened to the native population of America?

Left or Right?

(From The Calgary Albertan)

OUR interest has been drawn from time to time by the English Channel tunnel project which seems to be going on apace.

We have mentioned in previous little essays on the subject some of the political problems which have plagued the Channel tunnel scheme since its inception more than a hundred years ago—fear of invasion by the British, opposition by shipping interests, arguments as to the "scientific" impossibility of the project.

Now the Montreal Star comes up with a new problem which we had not before considered. "At what points," asks The Star, "will the English driver, who sticks to the left of the road, switch over to accommodate his European counterpart who, sharing the preference of Canadians and Americans, favor the right?"

Small Man Crushed

For 25 years my family have been using pure, unpasteurized milk bought from small independent dairymen who milk their own cows and sell the milk to their own customers. Their farms are at all times under rigid government inspection and such diseases as undulant fever, tuberculosis and typhoid fever have never been traced to their milk in the locality. Thirty years ago there were over a hundred of these people operating their own small businesses; at present there are five.

It appears that yet another attempt is being made to wipe out these small men completely and place all consumers under the control of a cartel which will meet in secret and tell us what we shall buy and what we must pay. Does the average man realize that as our economy falls into the hands of large monopolies the next step is state control with a horde of bureaucrats managing everything, which will result in a situation not unlike that of the communist world.

Refugee Aid

It was with great relief that we read of Premier Bennett's assurance to Dr. Keenleyside that British Columbia is going to throw its weight into helping the European refugees still in camps there.

How proud we could be of British Columbia if we could show the rest of Canada true charity to the most unfortunate people in the world.

I write for a rapidly-growing number of British Columbia residents who are taking the lead in all Canada in trying to befriend the displaced persons. In Vancouver, the Okanagan and Vancouver Island our numbers are steadily multiplying. Now, during World Refugee Year, the desire to help has extended into innumerable other groups in British Columbia.

A mother has learned in Victoria that her daughter has emerged unscathed after nursing 196 inhabitants of the Arctic outpost of Coppermine through a virulent flu epidemic.

Until she received a telegram saying "situation under control" in the northern outpost, Mrs. Agatha Dawson, 2705 Prior, depended on newspaper accounts for news of her daughter.

SOLE CHARGE

Twenty-six-year-old Mary A. Dawson is a public health nurse in sole charge of the government nursing station at Coppermine.

Normally, with no doctor within 350 miles, Nurse Dawson, in addition to tending the sick, does all suturing, fills teeth and pulls them as well, handles all obstetrics and runs public health and vaccination clinics.

ALL BUT FOUR

When the flu epidemic struck three weeks ago, all but four of the inhabitants of the Northwest Territories community were laid low.

Luckily, Dr. Elizabeth Cass, a federal government eye specialist, arrived as part of an annual medical tour. Both doctor and nurse worked night and day with limited supply of drugs to pull all the patients through.

"I was just sick with worry," said Mrs. Dawson, a registered nurse herself, who is visiting relatives here.

"My daughter has more courage than her mother ever had," she said. "Her work is her whole life."

Nurse Dawson's plans for the future, her mother said, include a trip to England later this year for post-graduate work, then perhaps to Geneva and a job with the World Health Organization.

Combines Trial

Refiners in Position To 'Up' Sugar Price

WINNIPEG (CP)—A sugar combines trial that went into its fifth week Monday, now is expected to wind up speedily.

British Columbia Sugar Refining Company Limited and B.C. Sugar Refinery Limited are charged with forming a combine between June 1, 1954, and July 13, 1959, by acquiring control of Manitoba Sugar Company. The trial started March 21.

The Crown rested its case Monday afternoon.

The only price requirement for Canadian sugar refiners, he said, was that they remain under the landing price of foreign sugar.

"If there's no competition in Western Canada from within the country and no competition from without the country, then refiners are in a position to up the price by a considerable degree," Mr. Ritchie said.

'Poor Sports' in U.S.

An American who has spent most of her life in Victoria labelled her fellow-Americans "poor sports" yesterday for complaining about Canadian discounts on U.S. currency.

Mrs. Mildred Vining, 2220 Cook Street, was "hopping mad" over an editorial in the Detroit Times, calling the discount "cupidity and usury" and suggesting that Americans stay away from Canada in protest.

"I don't know how anyone

'Fair Lady' Wows Reds

MOSCOW (UPI)—"My Fair Lady," brought from America at great expense, Monday thrilled an opening-night audience in the Soviet Army Theatre of 2,000 Russians who barely understood a word but loved the music, dancing and slapstick.

U.S. cast, led by Edward Mulhare and Lola Fisher, was starting eight weeks in Russia, the first three here.

Audience liked best the dancing to "A Little Bit of Luck" and "Get Me to the Church on Time" and saved longest, loudest cheers for Charles Victor, playing Eliza Doolittle's father.

who calls himself an American could write a thing like that," Mrs. Vining said. "When we go down there, they won't even take our money. They're just a bunch of poor sports!"

William Hawkins, commissioner of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, termed the editorial "stupid."

ADVANTAGES

"They forget that the Americans had the advantage not long ago when the Canadian dollar was discounted. They are to blame for this present situation, not us."

"I recall having Canadian funds discounted by 25 per cent in 1946," said Chamber of Commerce member Sam Lane. "Last year in California when I offered Canadian money I was told 'Give us some real money.'"

NEW TRICK

The editorial read: "We have endured their discounting our currency for a long time. Their new trick of knocking two cents off American quarters and four cents off American dollars smacks not only of cupidity but also usury."

"It carries an arrogant implication that our money is second-class money. If that's the way they feel, it is not unreasonable to assume they look upon us as second-class neighbors.

"While they are in that frame of mind it might be smart not to burden Canada with our presence and not to infest their coffers with our coin."

"Why not make this year 'See the United States first?' it suggested. 'Our mountains are just as high, our prairies just as wide, our rivers and lakes just as picturesque and highways immeasurably superior."

NHA Policy Shift

Lots on Sewers Soon in Demand

Change in policy for granting NHA loans will place sewer lots in Saanich and elsewhere at a premium, Reeve George Chatterton said last night.

He was commenting on an announcement yesterday that Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation will revert to its former policy of not granting NHA loans for construction of homes on non-sewered lots. It will not become effective here until Jan. 1, 1961.

The reeve said return to the policy which was effective up to Jan. 1, 1958, was "added cause" for approval by voters of the twice-defeated Gordon Head sewage disposal plant scheme.

"After the bylaw was turned down a second time, the council decided to study the possibility of connecting sewers with existing Oak Bay system," said Mr. Chatterton.

NOT FEASIBLE

"Now, after several months of intensive investigation, it has been definitely proven that such a link isn't feasible.

"For my part," he went on, "I believe the bylaw should be put to a vote once again this December."

The reeve said subdivision development within the municipality probably will be little affected by the changed policy because the municipality itself requires installation of sewers in large subdivisions.

WHOLE AREA

These small individual plants now constitute most of the sewers in Saanich. The proposed Gordon Head plant would serve the whole area east of Shelbourne.

Won't Happen Here Says Gallery Chief

Victoria Art Gallery officials, remembering recent raids on art galleries across Canada and elsewhere in which valuable paintings have been stolen, are determined that "it won't happen here."

At present, and until May 1, the gallery has on exhibit a collection of paintings by 19th century United States artists.

To ensure the safety of these works, curator Colin Graham has established a 24-hour guard at the gallery, and has asked Victoria city police to give special attention to the building.

"I'm developing something of a split personality over the thing," he told the Colonist.

"On one hand I want to tell everyone of the fine paintings on display. On the other, I don't want to identify any one or two items to make them drawing cards for 'unwanted visitors'."

"All I can do is urge the public to come and see the collection."

U.S., Rebels Plotting New Castro Charge

'No Dabbling In Cuba' U.S. Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department denied Monday Premier Fidel Castro's charge that American authorities at the Guantanamo naval base are involved in counter-revolutionary activities in Cuba. "Our people at the base are doing their work and not dabbling in Cuban politics," said a department spokesman.

HAVANA (AP)—Fidel Castro charged Monday that U.S. authorities at Guantanamo naval base are connected with a plot to set up organized counter-revolutionary resistance to his regime in eastern Cuba.

"American authorities at the naval base know of these activities and are connected with them," the prime minister said.

Island Tugs In, Out At Japan

The Victoria-owned tug Cambrian Salvor yesterday delivered her aircraft carrier tow to a Japanese scrapyard. Her owners, Island Tug and Barge said the tug will remain on standby for the present at her Yokohama base.

Another of Island Tug's ocean-going fleet, Sudbury II, is two days out of Osaka on the return trip from Japan. She also recently completed a trans-Pacific tow with an obsolete aircraft carrier for scrapping.

He said U.S. planes had been flying over the mountainous region of eastern Cuba, probably trying to make contact with Manuel Beaton, a counter-revolutionary hiding out there with a small band of men.

He said the objective of all these activities "is to create some sort of resistance to the government on the east coast between the mountains and Guantanamo."

MISSING PLANE

The U.S. state department said planes from the base were searching for a missing plane last week in the mountain area.

Despite the charges, Castro said he feels problems between the U.S. and Cuba can be solved.

He expressed willingness to talk with anyone to promote U.S.-Cuban understanding.

But he appeared reluctant to specify whether he thought a meeting with President Eisenhower or State Secretary Herter would do the trick.

Protect Us, Chinese Demand

Vancouver Grocer Slain; Rewards Reach $5,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rewards totalling $5,000 were offered Monday for information leading to arrest and conviction in the savage slaying of an elderly Chinese grocer Easter Sunday.

Detectives continued intensive investigations into the death of Tom Fat, 65, in his mid-town grocery store. No arrests have been made and police indicated they have few clues.

An autopsy showed Fat was beaten over the head and face with a soft-drink bottle more than 15 times. Four of his ribs were fractured — presumably by kicks — and he was killed eventually by five stab wounds in the chest.

Fat's slaying, the fifth such death of a Chinese grocer in Vancouver in as many years, brought demands for more police protection for Chinese storekeepers. The grocer is believed to have been attacked when he surprised at least two burglars in his store.

SON FOUND BODY
Fat's body was discovered by his son Harry, 28, when he took 20 dozen daffodils to the store at 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

Police said bruises on the victim's body indicated one man held him while another beat and stabbed him. The butcher knife apparently was brought by Fat from his living quarters at the rear of the store when he heard burglars.

Alexander Greatest Soldier I Served Under—Clark

VISCOUNT ALEXANDER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired army general Mark Clark says Field Marshal Viscount Alexander, former governor-general of Canada, was "the greatest soldier that I served under" in the Second World War.

In an interview, Clark was asked whom he considered his greatest commander.

Clark said he had served under General Eisenhower during the North African invasion and Eisenhower "had many qualities of leadership that I admired."

He then added he had served under Alexander in Italy "and I think he's the greatest soldier that I served under in the Second World War."

Flood Leaves 'Awful Mess' Near Portage La Prairie

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE (CP) — Flood conditions along Highway 4 northwest of here are so bad that people are fishing in the ditches — and catching fish.

That was one of the observations made by Portage la Prairie Mayor H. Lloyd Henderson in a flying survey of the swollen Whitemud River, which has overflowed its banks at the villages of Gladstone and Westbourne and near Woodside.

"Westbourne's main street is under water and water is pouring through its park," he said.

"Alongside Highway 4, people are fishing in the ditches, and getting fish too."

Several creeks have overflowed near Woodside and further flood water has moved into the area from the Whitemud.

"Motorboats are operating in the ditches between Westbourne and Woodside."

Mopping-up operations have begun in Gladstone, Mr. Henderson said, as the ice jamming on the Whitemud has moved downstream toward Westbourne and Lake Manitoba. At least two bridges, several roads and numerous culverts have been damaged and farm damage in the area will be serious, he said.

Similar conditions prevail in the Portage la Prairie area, where the Assiniboine River flooded thousands of acres of farmland last week.

"We've started to assess the damage — and it's an awful mess," Mr. Henderson said. "Houses are full of silt, furniture has been ruined, and as the flood level recedes and carries off the silt from the fields, they will not be in production again for two years."

Mine Union Assets Past $110,000,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — The financial report of the United Mine Workers' Union filed with the labor department indicates it may be the richest union in the U.S., with assets valued at $110,315,080.

That does not count the union's welfare and retirement fund, estimated to total in excess of $100,000,000.

Figures are contained in reports filed in compliance with the new labor-managing reporting law.

The report shows the union owns 40 per cent of the working capital stock of the National Bank of Washington, one of the largest in the capital.

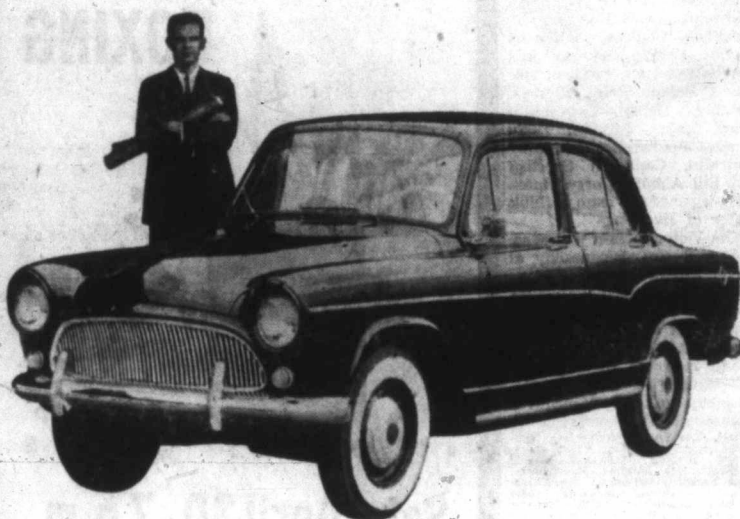

Also listed among the assets are 10 per cent of the common stock of the Western Kentucky Coal Co., of which Canadian-born Cleveland financier Cyrus Eaton is board chairman; and all of the outstanding preferred stock — 50,000 shares — of the Western Kentucky Coal Co.

The assets were built under the management of John L. Lewis, who retired as the union's president in January to become its president emeritus.

Love Match Ends Even

SAIGON (Reuters) — Huynh Thi Mai, 20-year-old Vietnamese beauty queen, put her two suitors through a wrestling match to decide who was better suited to win her heart.

Miss Mai was dipping into Vietnamese legend to help decide her matrimonial problems. Twenty centuries ago, legend has it, the spirit of the mountain wrestled the spirit of the sea for the hand of the prettiest daughter of King Hung Vuong of Vietnam.

The 1960 match was a draw — and Miss Mai still does not know whom she is going to marry.

The haunting memories of a TEX-MADE sheet

"I was one of her wedding presents 12 years ago. Every second Monday she'd hang me out on the line (the back-fence gossip I've heard in my time!) The other ladies were always admiring me: 'So crisp and rich'... 'So beautiful, so—'"

But now I'm boasting. Sorry.

The night Johnny was born I went to the hospital with them, wrapped around her knees! Talk about nervous fathers—he thought I was a blanket. The years went so fast! Suddenly I was top sheet on Johnny's new grown-up bed and he was taking his puppy to sleep with him. That was when I first began to feel a little tired. Lately I've been resting a lot, but it's lonely on the shelf. Then Johnny dug me out and made these eye-holes and I was sure it was the end of me.

But guess what... she was mad! She called me a perfectly good sheet! She's going to patch me! I may be just a ghost of my former self, but I'm still a Tex-Made. And we Canadian sheets are pretty hardy."

Kerr in Semis With Pro Trio

Laurie Kerr, who won the title in 1956, was left as the only amateur in the running for the Vancouver Island open golf championship after quarter-final matches were played Sunday at the Victoria Golf Club.

Although high winds set a stage for possible upsets, favorites came through in each case as professionals Laurie Carroll, Ron MacLeod and Art Donaldson joined Kerr in the semi-finals.

ONE FINISH MATCH

Only Donaldson, the big unattached pro who plays out of the Gorge Vale Golf Club, had any serious difficulty. He had to go the whole way before sidetracking Gordie Pelow, Uplands Golf Club captain, 1 up.

Carroll, pro at the Victoria Golf Club, was in fine form as he bested Colwood-veteran Vic Painter, 6 and 5. Kerr and MacLeod won by 4 and 3, defeating John Merriman and Gordie Whan, Duncan, respectively.

Semi-finals, over 36 holes, will be played at the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club on Sunday. Kerr gets Donaldson while Carroll and MacLeod tangle for the other berth in the final.

Carroll, playing the best golf of the eight quarter-finalists, started slowly as Painter won the first two holes. Then with his sore back apparently loosening up, Carroll began throwing birdies and pars at Painter to end the match on the 13th green.

Kerr had Merriman down by three holes after six but the latter got back into the game with successive birdies on the seventh and eighth holes, stayed close by dropping a long putt on the 11th before yielding to the steadier play of the young Colwood veteran.

MacLeod, who is playing out of the Qualicum Beach club, similarly was too steady for Whan.

IT WAS CLOSE

Donaldson was never behind in his match against Pelow but not until the 16th did he look like a winner, and even then Pelow fought back to force the match to the limit.

The match was tied after 14 holes, Donaldson going one up when he came up with a birdie on the 15th. He went two up on the 16th when Pelow's approach shot rolled off the green into a trap.

Dornie two, Pelow prolonged the match with a birdie on the 17th but Donaldson halved the 18th for the win.

In the handicap championship, Vic Derman and Fred Groome of Gorge Vale, Walt Spaven of Cedar Hill and Doug Fosbrooke of Victoria advanced to the semi-finals, but not before they were tested to the limit.

Groome needed an extra hole to defeat clubmate Jim Cairnie and Fosbrooke had to play two extra holes before he could shake off John Catterall of Gorge Vale. The 15-year-old Derman, who meets the 57-year-old Groome in the semi-finals, bested Colwood's Gordie Hay, 3 and 2, and Spaven downed Jack Meadley of Gorge Vale, 4 and 3.

City Curlers Win Twice at Nanaimo

NANAIMO — Nanaimo and Victoria rinks split the honors as the Vancouver Island curling season came to an end Sunday with the completion of the annual Easter mixed bonspiel at the Nanaimo Curling Club.

Don MacRae of Nanaimo took top honors by trimming Dick Pick of Victoria, 12-3, in the finals of the "A" primary.

OVERWORKED — It was the first of two Sunday defeats for Pick, who had started the day as the only unbeaten rink and found the last-day schedule a bit too much. He was beaten, 13-1, by Gene Koster of Nanaimo in the "B" primary.

Against MacRae, Pick's rink was down by 9-3 starting the sixth end but had a chance for a five-ender there. Pick, however, missed his last shot and MacRae counted one.

Visibly upset, the Victoria rink gave up two more points on the seventh end, then conceded.

Back on the ice immediately for his sixth game of the day, Pick never got the chalk until

Nanaimo Stays Alive

FORT FRANCES — Nanaimo Labatts stayed off elimination in their best-of-seven Western Canada intermediate hockey final with Fort Frances, scoring three times in the first period Monday night to dump the Canadians, 4-1.

Fort Frances now leads the series three games to one with the fifth game to be played tonight.

In the previous three games, Nanaimo had played on even terms with Fort Frances before falling apart in the third period.

However, Nanaimo took a 3-0 lead in the first period last night on goals by Bud Dumont, Lou Schreanan and Jim Peterson, split a pair of goals in the second period and then held the pressing Canadians scoreless in the third period. Nanaimo's other goal was scored by Joe Zuback.

A standout for Nanaimo was goalie Bob Lumley who blocked 31 shots.

Referee Vern O'Donnell handed 40 minutes in penalties during the rough game. Nanaimo received 22 minutes, Don Smith picking up four minors and a misconduct.

Nanaimo Goal: Lumley; defense: Williams, Brown, Robinson, Schreanan; forwards: Chorney, Zuback, Rutherford, Dumont, Kaden, Peterson, Smith, Younsworth, Berry, Dugan.

Fort Frances Goal: Barrett; defense: Boyle, Havel, Peterson, Matthews, Edwards; forwards: Lambert, Dwyer, LaFrance, G. McInnes, Cain, Kewich, W. McInnes, Kinner, Elsmann.

Wood Beaten In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bill Thompson of Marine Drive got consecutive birdies on the last two holes Sunday for a one-up victory over Shaughnessy professional Fred Wood in the third round of the city match play golf tournament.

Bert Teehurst, veteran Wilfrington Cup team member, repeated Thompson's stunt for a 1-up victory in 19 holes over Doug McAlpine of Fraserview.

Both enter next Sunday's quarter-finals along with six other golfers. One is Len Morgan of Burquitlam, who upset Joe Jeroski of Langara, 4 and 2. The others are Lyle Crawford, Al Nelson, B.C. amateur champion Ron Willey, Bud Bird and Don Ross.

Wolves, gunning for top honors for the third straight season, beat visiting Nottingham Forest, 3-1, while rival Tottenham Hotspur and Burnley dropped valuable points.

Spurs played host to their London neighbors, Chelsea, and were blanked, 1-0. Burnley visited Leicester and lost, 2-1.

The teams emerged from a heavy Easter weekend schedule into the home stretch of the 42-game season with Wolverhampton two points in front.

Wolves have 51 points from 39 games. Both Tottenham and Burnley have 49 points, but the Spurs have played 40 games while Burnley has played only 38.

CLINCH PROMOTION

Aston Villa edged into top place in the second division, winning, 2-1, at home over Stoke City while rival Cardiff was idle.

Both Villa and Cardiff have already clinched promotion to the First Division next season.

The issue is all but settled in the Third Division. Southampton, which shut out Reading, 1-0, tops the standing with 57 points from 43 games and three left to play.

Norwich City has 54 points from the same number of games after trouncing Halifax, 3-0. Both teams are virtually certain to spend next season in the Second Division.

The promotion hopes of third-place Bury, with 50 points, virtually disappeared with a 3-0 defeat at Port Vale.

In the Fourth Division, Notts County edged nearer pace-setting Walsall by beating the league leader, 2-1. But Walsall, with 59 points from 41 games, is five points out in front with a game in hand over Notts.

Notts slipped into a tie for second place with Torquay United when Torquay was held to a 2-2 tie at home by Millwall.

Many of B.C.'s Secrets Die with Reporter-Historian

Bruce A. "Pinkie" McKelvie, 70, reporter and historian, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital on Sunday. Many secrets died with him.

He knew the bolt-holes and trick staircases of Vancouver's old Chinatown, the untold scandals and hollow places in the lives of celebrated people.

His half-century career brought him recognition as a top-ranking police and political reporter. He had worked for a dozen newspapers and written nine books.

But the veteran reporter's most fascinating story — his autobiography — never got into print. He poured out that story in a never-ceasing flow of anecdote to his friends, who numbered thousands.

The veteran with the green eyes, the round, solemn face, and glasses to help his badly failing eyesight, charmed generations of younger reporters with his yarns.

He liked to talk about B.C.'s past and future, in idle minutes at the legislative press gallery, or in front of the fire in the rambling house at Cobble Hill where he lived amidst a jumble of manuscripts, historical documents and Indian treasures.

In his time, the old master had worked for the British and Canadian secret services, talked a group of angry Chinese out of killing him with a knife, and ridden in a home-made plane with a pilot who had never been off the ground before.

He outfoxed politicians who tried to conceal news, covered everything from mine disasters to the misdeeds of the religious cultist-racketeer, Brother Twelve; had been a friend to premiers, police chiefs and men of the underworld.

Open-mouthed listeners have heard the McKelvie tricks of the trade; heard how Amor De Cosmos, founder of the Colonist, used to dye his red beard black; and how the Germans were thwarted in a plan to conquer B.C. in the 1914-18 war.

Bruce McKelvie and his brother, the late A. J. "Spook" McKelvie, were born in Vancouver when its population was 8,000. They used to pick nuts and hunt grouse where Vancouver's city hall now stands. They swam in a creek that ran down what is now Cambie Street.

That leafy Vancouver has long since been covered in a concrete overcoat. Bruce and his brother both became newspapermen in the new, roaring Vancouver. Both of them belonged to the breed of police reporters who were licensed to carry revolvers and were half policemen themselves.

Douglas Armour, a fellow-reporter on the Vancouver Province hung the nickname "Pinkie" on Bruce McKelvie

BRUCE A. MCKELVIE
... charmed generations

when he was young, plump and pink-cheeked.

Slamon Indians made him an honorary chief when he saved an Indian girl from drowning as a boy on Texada Island. He championed the cause of B.C. Indians all his life; once went before the B.C. cabinet as a spokesman in his capacity as a chief.

He took his first newspaper job on Texada Island at the age of nine — part-time printer's devil for the old Coast Miner.

Later moves took him to the Ladysmith Ledger, the Ladysmith Chronicle, the Ladysmith Signal (his own newspaper) the Vancouver Sun and the Prince Rupert Daily News (he was editor).

He worked for the old Vancouver World, became manager of the Vancouver Board of Trade Manufacturers' bureau, where he launched a successful "Buy B.C. Products" campaign; worked for the Vancouver Province; headed the B.C. tourist publicity bureau.

For seven years he was managing editor of The Daily Colonist. When on the Sun he wrote a history of the Liberal party, "which made a Conservative of me," he said.

He ran for B.C. legislature, losing to W. T. Straith by 90 votes; lost to R. W. Mayhew in a byelection for a House of Commons seat.

He found his greatest pleasure in victories over phillistines who tried to destroy historic things. He had the carvings of a prehistoric race near Nanaimo set aside as Petroglyph Park; saved the life of Governor Douglas' cherry tree and waged a campaign to save many historic things.

Among his books were "A Short History of B.C.," "Huldownget," "Black Canyon," "Pelt and Powder," "Maquinna

the Magnificent," "Fort Langley," "Tales of Conflict" and "Pageant of B.C."

He was past president of B.C. Historical Association, and past grand factor of the Native Sons of B.C.

He gave his first child the initials B.C. — Bernice Catherine Monk, who survives him, living at Cobble Hill.

Also surviving are his widow, the former Kate Allen; a son, Douglas, who teaches school at Clearwater, B.C.; and another son, Donald Henry, at home, Mr. McKelvie's helper in building and maintaining the private museum where numbers of unique and priceless documents and Indian artifacts are kept.

Funeral services will be held at McCall Brothers' funeral home at 2 p.m. Friday. Burial will be at 3.30 p.m. the same day at St. John's Church, Cobble Hill, where Bruce McKelvie had asked to be buried.

Single Probation Officer

Skimpy Beginning Faces New Court

By R. O. MARRION

A skimpy start may lie ahead for a Greater Victoria family and juvenile court.

But a skimpy start, Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich said yesterday, would be better than none at all.

"I think the important thing is to get it established," he said. "We should recognize from the start, though, that later it may cost considerably more than indicated by the attorney-general's department."

A special intermunicipal steering committee is seeking further details on staffing and cost before making a submission to the Greater Victoria councils on establishment of the court. But indications so far have been that the attorney-general's department will supply the court with a single probation officer for a start.

This is in sharp contrast with the needs as seen by a Saanich committee headed by Coun. Ainslie Worthington, who reported after examining the Vancouver family and juvenile court operation that on the same basis, a Greater Victoria court would need three juvenile probation officers and a family court caseworker.

Ready to Go Along

But Reeve Chatterton said that for the sake of establishing a court, "although a skimpy court wouldn't do the job it should, I would be prepared to go along with initially having just one."

On the other hand, he said, the provincial government would be the financial beneficiary of a family and juvenile court — "Keeping one boy out of an institution would save the government almost the cost of a probation officer" — and he thought the attorney-general's department ought to supply more than one.

Glen Hamilton, executive director of the Community Welfare Council which has long pressed for establishment of the court, took the same view as Reeve Chatterton.

A court with one probation officer, he said, would be "grossly understaffed." To be effective, a probation officer should have time to do intensive work with families, he said, and "one probation officer would just be able to check off names."

But, he added, a court "has to get started, and any advance is worth while, although I think they will find at least four probation officers are needed."

Province Pays Salary

Of the costs of the court, the province will pay the salary of the probation officer or officers it supplies, and the participating Greater Victoria municipalities the probation staff's expenses and the salaries of the judge, the clerk of the court and stenographic help.

Offsetting these expenses to some degree will be the elimination of the municipalities' individual juvenile courts and the freeing of police juvenile officers from probation duties.

Provision of an adequate, well-trained probation staff ranks with selection of an able, interested judge in ensuring the success of the court, proponents of its establishment have repeatedly emphasized.

The reason is that the approach of this court will be based on prevention and rehabilitation rather than punishment.

Its establishment has been proposed because: The unification of court staff and records will eliminate duplication and confusion, and the centralization of the records will provide "a greater reservoir of confidential information on which to make sound diagnoses and appropriate treatment procedures."

Cut Down Cases

● Taking the place of police court in desertion and family assault cases, the family court with its consultative facilities would cut down the number of hasty, family-dividing cases. Records indicate the number of broken families is reduced when probation officers can assist before the necessity of a court appearance.

● Under the present system, juveniles on probation are required to report in many instances to police juvenile officers, and, according to a brief by city welfare administrator William Hoosen, it is almost impossible for a police juvenile officer to act successfully as prosecutor and then rehabilitation official with the same child.

● "Above all," the Community Welfare Council has pointed out, the provision of unified services of trained probation officers will allow far more preventive supervision of delinquents — "Many of these children are now sent to detention home or industrial school and are repeaters in juvenile crime through lack of proper supervision."

Discount Stories Irk Merchants

Seen In Passing

John Forrester operating a tissue blending machine in the laboratory at St. Joseph's Hospital. (He is a bacteriologist at the hospital. A single man, he devotes all his spare time to such activities as photography and the Junior Chamber of Commerce) ... Fred Smith laughing at his troubles in St. Joseph's Hospital ... Keith Johnson taking a ride in a sports car ... Sally McArthur waiting for the telephone ... Sue Bellward studying furiously for examinations ... Jean Harris getting ready for a big date ... Virginia Leeming regretting that she slept in ... Lois Sutherland ailing.

Victoria merchants are up in arms over reports that firms — some in the city — are selling goods at a discount to federal and provincial civil servants in this area.

A meeting of the retail merchants group of Victoria Chamber of Commerce will meet at 4 p.m. today to hear a special report on the situation, and is expected to make recommendations to be considered by a meeting of the chamber executive Friday afternoon.

VERY CLOSELY

"This is going to be looked into very closely by the group and they hope to come up with some proposal for the consideration of the board of directors," John Coppinger, secretary-manager of the chamber said last night.

It is understood the meeting this afternoon will be given a list of Victoria stores using the practice.

Both regular city businesses and special "discount houses" — some of which issue catalogues — are under fire from other businessmen.

SPECIFIC GROUPS

Discount houses, generally, do not deal with the public, but provide goods for specific groups such as civil servants. "We've found out it is a fallacy," one city businessman said last night. "Buyers get what they pay for in most discount houses."

He said some discount houses sell cheap quality merchandise. Some large manufacturers produce special, low quality lines for sale this way, he claimed.

Thousands of Daffodils Taken

Flower-Pickers May Be Charged

A Beacon Hill Park Easter egg hunt which attracted an estimated 10,000 people Sunday set off a chain reaction which may see charges laid against some of them for picking flowers.

City parks administrator W. H. Warren said yesterday it was impossible to make an accurate estimate of the loss but he placed the number of daffodils picked by the mob at "thousands."

RAN WILD

"They just ran wild," he said, referring to one of the largest crowds ever to visit the park at one time.

Major attraction was a Junior Chamber of Commerce-sponsored Easter egg hunt which apparently got out of hand.

Police, who hustled to the scene on the heels of reports that daffodils were being stripped from one part of the park, confiscated many bunches of the flowers, took the names of some of the pickers, and finally distributed the blooms between Victoria's two general hospitals.

SALVAGE DAFFODILS

Mr. Warren said the flower-picking "spree" started when a few parents of youngsters participating in the egg hunt decided to "salvage" some of the daffodils trampled during the search.

Other people saw the daffodils being picked and started behaving as though the park had declared an "open season" on flowers.

Mr. Warren said the south-east side of Beacon Hill is practically bare of flowers as a result of the rampage.

Although daffodils were the main target of the pickers, their actions resulted in the trampling of thousands of wild bluebells which usually provide an arresting display later in the spring.

MORE CONTROL

He said he would not recommend that the egg hunt be ousted from the park next Easter, but that more rigid control of the participants be exercised.

He would also recommend that the eggs be hidden farther away from the daffodils on the southern slope, he said.

Jaycee officials, who regretted the damage to the park's floral assets, said response to the egg hunt was far beyond their expectations.

6,000 AT MOST

"We expected 6,000 people at the most, and we believe that close to 12,000 showed up," Jaycee president Peter Forward said yesterday.

He said the egg hunt, held this year for the first time, "is the kind of event which we can only learn from by doing it — I'm sure the park officials appreciate this."

Chief Constable John Blackstock said yesterday that no decision has been made on the disposition of names of some of the flower pickers — "we may lay charges."

Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, parks committee member was shocked by the behavior of parents involved.

Off Cliff

Boy Falls 30 Feet To Water

"I felt myself falling backwards, I bounced off a couple of rocks, and I was unconscious."

Gordon Ross neglected to add that he was also extremely lucky, but the 13-year-old boy probably realized it as he lay in St. Joseph's Hospital last night. It's not often someone can fall 30 feet off a cliff into shallow water and escape with a few cuts and abrasions.

Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ian M. Ross, 2861 Rockwell, did it yesterday about 2.15 p.m. at Finlayson Arm about halfway to Brentwood. An unidentified fisherman took him to Hall's Boathouse, and from there he was rushed to hospital by Langford ambulance.

Gordon, his brother David, 15, and Angus, Stanfield, 14, of Tait Street, were out in a small boat off Finlayson Arm trying to reach Brentwood. When the motor failed, David stayed with the boat trying to restart it while Angus and Gordon climbed along the rocks on shore.

Victim Pinned to Earth When Tractor Flips Over

A North Saanich resident was seriously injured yesterday when his tractor flipped over, pinning him to the ground.

K. W. Bompas, 8620 Ebor Terrace, was in fair condition at Rest Haven Hospital last night with chest, back and shoulder injuries. A neighbor, J. M. Kennaird, said he heard Mrs. Bompas call for help and rushed to the scene. He said the victim was pinned under the tractor with the steering wheel and part of the engine housing holding him down.

Victoria Mall Vote Delayed to May 19

A property-owners' vote on Victoria's $1,000,000 off-street parking and mall plan will be postponed from May 5 to May 19.

This decision, the Colonist was informed yesterday, was made by city council in a closed committee meeting which followed its regular, open meeting Thursday. Mayor Percy Scurrall said after the closed meeting he had nothing to announce.

The May 5 date earlier chosen for the vote apparently left too little time for the required formalities: preparation and preliminary passage of the bylaw and then 10 days' notice of the vote.

Council also may reduce the area in which the vote will be taken. Original plan was to use the No. 1 fire limits — a pyramid with its base along the harbor front from Chatham to Elliot and its apex on Vancouver — as the area in which property-owners would be eligible to vote. The aldermen discussed reducing it to the district most directly affected by the construction of the View Street parking garage and its arcades and the View and Broad Street malls.

The closed committee meeting Thursday lasted more than an hour, but most of this time was taken up, according to post-meeting indications, by discussion of possible means of cutting staff or otherwise compensating for the 11-per-cent wage increase awarded to police and firemen by a conciliation board.

Cars Stolen

Thieves Foil Moves To Outwit Thieves

Steps to outwit thieves who made off with several sets of automobile keys from a city garage on Good Friday failed. The thieves returned, stole two cars and damaged half a dozen others.

An official of Empress Motors Ltd., 900 Fort, said steps were taken to immobilize used cars whose ignition keys were found to be missing after the Friday theft.

"But apparently they had keys to at least one car that we didn't know about."

Cars belonging to the firm were crammed into the fenced used car lot in such a way that moving them was deemed almost impossible.

But the thieves scaled the seven-foot wire fence and managed to extricate two of the vehicles.

"The way they drove around inside the lot running into things, I would say they must have been youngsters," the company official said.

He estimated damage to cars inside the lot at around $200.

One of the missing cars was recovered before noon yesterday but police were still searching for the second one.

Damaged Statue Will Likely Stay

The Queen Elizabeth statue in Beacon Hill Park will stay there despite vandalism if Ald. M. H. Mooney, parks committee chairman, has his way.

Note of the statue was badly smashed last week, and parks administrator W. H. Warren has said he will suggest moving the bust to protect it from future attacks.

But Ald. Mooney said yesterday the park "is the only place for it" and it should be kept there.

The statue was obtained to commemorate the Queen's civic reception in the park last year, he said, and "if we take it out of there, what's the use of having it?"

Sisters Attend Bride At Victoria West Rites

Two sisters of the bride and her young niece were attendants at the wedding of Barbara Patricia Ann Cummings to Mr. Donald Orval Richardson recently.

Victoria West United Church was decorated with floral standards for the ceremony which was conducted by Rev. N. L. Hughes.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Lillian Violet Cummings of 306

Edward Street, Victoria, was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. W. J. Reid. Groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Orval A. Richardson of New Westminster.

A jewel encrusted neckline sparkled on the bride's gown of imported lace. A crinolined skirt was bustled with frills of nylon net. A crown of pearls held her tulle veil and she wore a corsage of pink roses

Musselwhite-Hodges

PARKSVILLE — A pretty wedding united two well known families of this district when Dorothy Helen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hodges of Parksville exchanged vows with George John Musselwhite, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Musselwhite of Combs.

The afternoon double ring ceremony was performed by Ames Rosvold, at the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride made a lovely picture in a floor-length crinoline gown of traditional white imported lace and net. The very full skirt was in tiered effect. A tiara headpiece of pearls and sequins held her fingertip length veil. She carried American Beauty roses and Stephanotis.

The bride's attendants were her sister, Miss May Hodges, and the groom's sister, Miss Grace Musselwhite. Both wore stocks of nylon sheer and lace over taffeta, the former in pink and the latter in blue. They wore white feather hats. Mr. Robert P. McNiven of Port Coquitlam was best man. About 70 guests attended the reception which followed in the lounge of the Island Hall Hotel and the toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. John Musselwhite.

For going away the bride donned a two-piece outfit of wool boucle in a Mediterranean blue shade with which she wore white accessories.

Following a motor trip to California and other points in the United States the couple will reside at Carmel, near Penticton, B.C.

spiked with white velvet petals. Mrs. M. Stultz, sister of the bride, was her matron of honor, in a bouffant gown of mauve taffeta, and a headpiece of matching nylon petals. Mrs. B. Price, as bridesmatron, wore a similar gown in yellow taffeta. Their bouquets were mauve and yellow chrysanthemums. Sandra Price as flower girl wore a white nylon gown with a crinoline skirt and a floral bonnet.

Mr. Barry Kronpa was best man and Mr. Larry Simpson of Nelson and Mr. Ron Ritchie of Port Alberni were ushers.

As the young couple left for a honeymoon in Seattle, the bride was wearing a white suit and coat with a rose-flowered hat and a corsage of pink roses.

They will make their home in New Westminster.

Spring Rings in Tea Time Fever

Spring tea fever, that annual epidemic that so pleasantly attacks the distaff side, is beginning to display its usual symptoms. Rashes of teas, recipe-prescriptions for all sorts of fancy baking, and feverish committee plans for club teas are in the making.

Perhaps it's our springtime restlessness that inspires us to commune with friends and neighbors over a cup of tea.

Here are some new tea-time ideas for sandwiches and little cakes and cookies, to serve at home, or to take as your donation to the church, school or club tea.

CHEESE AND ASPARAGUS ROLL-UPS

(Makes 16 Sandwiches)
Four ounces softened processed cheese, 1 tablespoon cream, dash dry mustard, canned asparagus spears, thinly sliced sandwich bread, butter.

To softened cheese, blend in cream and dry mustard. Trim crusts from bread slices, butter and spread with cheese filling. Place asparagus spears diagonally across bread; fold opposite corners across centre. Secure with toothpicks.

FRUITED CREAM CHEESE SANDWICH FILLING

(Makes approximately 1 cup)
One (4-ounce) package cream cheese, 1 tablespoon milk, 3 tablespoons chopped glace fruit (cherries, pineapple, etc.), 1 tablespoon chopped walnuts, dash salt, white bread, butter.

Allow cheese to soften at room temperature; cream with one tablespoon milk. Blend in chopped fruits, nuts and salt. For each sandwich cut two small circles of bread—one with a doughnut hole. Butter each bread circle generously, spread each large circle with filling; cover with second circle which has hole in centre.

MERINGUE TOPPING

Beat egg whites until frothy. Gradually add white sugar and cinnamon; beat until stiff. Spread over baked layer; sprinkle with chopped nuts. Return to oven and continue baking 20 to 25 minutes or until golden brown. Cut into 1 1/2 inch squares while warm.

To Kitimat

Mrs. B. M. Johnson and her four children left Victoria for Kitimat, Friday, to join her husband who has recently been appointed department manager of Hudson's Bay Company there. Mrs. Johnson has been staying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jamie Cameron, at their home on Eastdowne Road.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My son is a high school senior and is now looking over various universities and colleges. He's a good student and could probably get into any school he selected.

The thing that bothers me is he judges schools by their athletic achievements. If a college doesn't have a red-hot football team he's not interested.

I've tried to explain this is a poor criterion but he says it's the best way to tell if an institution is "on the stick."

The sharp schools, according to him, pay a lot of attention to their athletic program and get a winning team at all costs. It's smart public relations, he says, which influences the entire program. What do you say about this? — KNOW.

NOTHING POP.

Dear Pop: Robert Hutchins said it better than anyone—and I quote: "Football has the same relation to education that bull-fighting has to agriculture."

I'm Available

Dear Ann: I'm planning to break my engagement to a fellow who monopolized my life for five years. We started to go steady when I was 15 and became engaged three years later. I've never had a date with anyone else.

I won't go into detail but I'm sure he's a confirmed alcoholic and a pathological liar. I don't want to spend my life listening to lies and nursing hangovers.

Everyone thinks of me as Mickey's girl and I know it will take a long time before the word gets around that I'm available for dates. Could I hurry things along by placing a small ad in the newspaper? — NICK OF TIME.

Dear Nick: I dislike spoiling a sale for the classified ad department but I cannot, in good conscience, advise you to place an ad in the paper announcing a broken engagement.

I hate to resort to this very tired joke, but if you want the word to get around fast—telephone, telegraph and telegram.

Chance to Marry

Dear Ann: I'm a middle-aged businessman and a widower. In my younger days I worshipped a young girl from afar but was too shy to make my feelings known. She married and so did I.

Twelve years ago my wife died. I'm still in love with the ideal of my dreams and always will be.

Three years ago her husband died. She travels, entertains and is invited everywhere. Her husband's picture is in every room. She refuses to give him up.

She's still beautiful and desirable and could give a man great happiness, but she won't even accept a dinner date.

I know another widower who has tried to interest her but has failed, too. She loves to help others so if you could make her realize how much happiness she could bring to some lonely man if she married again I'm sure it would bring her happiness, too.—L.W.

Dear L.W.: Why don't you marry one of the thousands of eager widows who are searching frantically for a man and bring some happiness into her life? I'm sure the idea doesn't appeal to you, and I don't blame you.

Visitors Organize Masonic Lodge

Miss Mary Gordon Muirhead Hope, right, and Miss Dorothy Allen Taylor.—(Ryan Bros. studio.)

Two ladies arrived here from England Sunday to institute the first Masonic Women's Lodge in western Canada.

They are Miss Mary Gordon Muirhead Hope, grand master of the Order of Women Freemasons, and her deputy, Miss Dorothy Allen Taylor.

News of their arrival had gone before them, for there was advance comment from male Freemasons, and ladies of other orders.

Said T. D. Robinson, deputy grand master of the Victoria area, District No. 1 of the Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons: "Such an organization could not possibly be recognized by our members."

Mrs. Doris Watson, grand matron of the Order of the Eastern Star also said she had never heard of Women Freemasons. "We," she said, "are an order of relatives of Freemasons."

In the face of these comments, Miss Hope of England remained calm.

"The Order of Women Freemasons was founded in England in 1908. We now have 126 lodges throughout the Commonwealth."

"We are not a subsidiary or auxiliary of masculine Masonry."

GOOD STANDING

Miss Hope said there were orders on this continent which were kinds of auxiliaries to masculine masonry, admitting only female relatives of Masons, but she said the Women Freemasons "admit women of good standing, on their own merits and not on those of relatives."

Miss Hope gave this reason for the initial formation of the order: "Ideals and practices of Masonry have proved over the ages such a source of strength and brotherhood to men, that we felt now that women are taking their places on an equal footing with men, that they might draw upon the same strength."

Miss Hope made it quite clear that the Women Masons allow no male members, or male auxiliaries or subsidiaries whatsoever.

A retired accountant and 42 years a Mason, Miss Hope said, "Our practice of Masonry is identical to that worked under the United Grand Lodge of England."

"Do you care," Miss Hope was asked, "if the Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons of District No. 1 do not feel they can possibly recognize you?"

"Certainly not," said Miss Hope. "We shall simply go on practicing Masonry."

CHARITY WORKS

Miss Hope explained that special charitable work outside the Order was mainly hospitals and homes for the aged.

'Stop and Start' Plan Wins Traffic Contest

A six-point "Stop and Start" plan to solve Victoria's traffic problem has won the essay contest held by Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Freda Davies, 4611 Van-freight Drive, won first prize of $30 by suggesting:

- "Stop breaking traffic laws."
- "Stop boasting how fast we can get from here to there."
- "Stop joking about traffic infractions and traffic police."
- "Start driving and walking always with care and courtesy."
- "Start mustering courage to condemn drunken driving in our private lives as well as publicly."
- "Start thinking of safety instead of speed when we drive."

Second prize of $20 was won by Alvin Henry, 2695 Chambers Street, who advocated a city-wide system of one-way streets in conjunction with a complete public education program, and compulsory courses for all persons applying for driving licences.

George Bodrug, 210 Island Highway, won third prize of $10 with a detailed plan to institute one-way streets in Victoria.

Other suggestions:

• "Put a real miserable cop at busy intersections to blow his whistle and harass traffic and pedestrian violators. Also have the policemen make surprise stands in different parts of the city to check licences, headlights, brakes." — Mrs. Lillian M. Irwin, 2780 Spencer Road.

EVEN DAYS

"Restrict, on every day, all private cars with B.C. licence plates ending in odd numbers, from entering the area bounded by Wharf Street, Fort Street, Cook Street and Pandora Avenue, during the period of, say, 5 p.m. to 5.15 p.m. On odd days, cars with even numbers would have their movements restricted." — Linn Gale, PO Box 115, Victoria.

• "Finish once and for all the wiring or whatever it is that keeps the streets full of holes for nine months of the year... block off a number of the side streets below Government and make them into a supervised parking area." — Bill Witham, Sooke.

• "A prefect system... a group of responsible, specially instructed drivers who would report infractions by licence number to a central office. The psychological effect of such a system would be tremendous." — G. S. F. Jackson, 3600 Doncaster.

Wrong-Way Satellite Whirls with Mother

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, CALIF. (AP)—The Discoverer XI satellite and its disobedient pup—a capsule which was to have parachuted toward the Pacific near Hawaii Saturday—are still whirling around the earth in egg-shaped orbits.

The 300-pound package of instruments, about the size of the circle a tall man can make with his arms, separated from its mother satellite as scheduled on the 17th trip over the Arctic Circle.

But instead of dropping into the atmosphere where aircraft were waiting to snag its parachute on trapezes slung beneath their fuselages, the capsule stayed close to its mother ship and became a baby satellite.

The U.S. Air Force, which launched Discoverer XI here Friday, said "some unknown malfunction occurred."

Gas Hearing Nears End

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Pacific Gas and Electric Company summed up Monday its case for the right to build a $63,000,000 296-mile pipeline in the state as part of a 1,400-mile natural gas pipeline to Canada.

State Public Utilities Commission hearings on the case have been in progress since Oct. 1.

"We believe a pipeline from Canada will free Pacific Gas and its customers from their present absolute dependence upon a single out-of-state supplier, El Paso Natural Gas Company," said Pacific Gas attorney Richard H. Peterson in a statement.

"Alberta gas is the only untapped existing supply within economic reach of northern California that has unusual potential for large future discoveries," he asserted.

Pacific Gas said a recommendation is expected shortly from the federal power commission examiner on applications to import the gas and to build the 614-mile Idaho-Washington-Oregon section.

Conspiracy In Car Deal?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Magistrate Oscar Orr reserved decision until April 22 on whether to commit for trial a car firm and two employees who are charged with conspiring to steal $12,500.

Charged are Aloha Motors Ltd.; Percy Bates, 45, sales manager, and Gordon Wilson, 36, a director.

Defence lawyer Leslie Cashman said the money owed to Argosy General Finance Ltd. following sale of six cars was a civil matter.

An Argosy accountant said Argosy financed purchase of a number of cars for Aloha Motors and got chattel mortgages on them.

Loan to Jews Pledged

LONDON (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is reported to have given Israel a secret pledge of a long-term $500,000,000 loan after West Germany's reparations program ends in 1964.

This dramatic postscript to the Nazi persecution of the Jews has been reported by an authoritative Israeli informant in London.

The big loan would help the Jewish state cushion its economy after 1964, when the 12-year program of West German reparations totalling $780,000,000 ends.

City Teachers At Convention

Underground Bride Wore White Helmet

MONFALCONE, Italy (UPI)—Cave explorer Boris Franceschini, 31, and Renata Ossani, 19, were married 130 feet underground in a grotto Monday. The couple, the priest, witnesses and guests all climbed down a 130-foot rope ladder into a chapel-shaped cave.

The bride wore overalls and a white steel helmet.

Just Send Money

You're Not Invited To This YWCA Tea

The public is cordially invited not to attend a tea being given by the Victoria YWCA April 27.

You see, there won't be any tea.

There also won't be any coffee, milk, cookies, cakes or food of any kind. It's sort of a tea for "tea-totalers." However, there will be a teapot, the largest the YWCA can find.

If you do come (but please don't), all you need to bring is your money and your imagination, with or without cream and sugar.

There is a serious purpose behind this "Imaginary Tea."

"April 24 to 30 is YWCA Week, and it is also Austerly Year for the World Refugee Year campaign," explained Mrs. Jean Peel of the YWCA.

"Since the YWCA is vitally interested in refugee work, we decided to hold an imaginary tea to raise money for them."

"People are invited to send the money they would have used to buy tea if there was any. We'll put the envelopes in the teapot, and when all donations are in, the money will go to the YWCA drive to raise $35,000 in Canada for World Refugee Year."

Money should be sent to the "Victoria YWCA Refugee Fund, 760 Courtney Street, Victoria."

Black Flags to Greet Chou En-lai in India

NEW DELHI (UPI)—An Indian opposition party will greet Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-lai with a "black flag" protest demonstration today on his arrival for key negotiations with Prime Minister Nehru.

President Ram Singh of the All-India Hindu Mahasabha said his party had decided to show Chou En-lai's "firm determination not to tolerate aggression by China" in the dispute over frontier territory.

WEEK-LONG

Singh said he personally would lead the demonstrators when Chou arrives from Rangoon, Burma, for a week-long visit. He said the orthodox Hindu demonstrators, "peaceful and disciplined," will march to Nehru's presidential palace with black flags to be shown to Chou.

Another opposition party, the right-wing Jana Sangh, staged a massive demonstration outside Nehru's residence demanding that the Indian leader be firm in his talks. The Jana Sangh, however, said it would not stage any demonstrations during the actual visit.

INTERCEPTED

Reports from the border town of Kalimpong, meanwhile, said police had intercepted a group of 100 Tibetan refugees seeking to travel to New Delhi to stage a similar protest demonstration.

The group contended Chou had no right to discuss with India the question of the Indian border with Tibet. That section of the border, the refugees declared, already was well demarcated and Tibet was not a rightful part of China.

The Tibetan refugee group included 43 monks, three Tibetans and a number of women. Some sat on the railway tracks and had to be removed forcibly by Indian police.

In Near Future

Teachers Tutor, Machines Teach

TORONTO (CP)—School children may get their education from machines before long, with teachers likely to become tutors, the Ontario Educational Association was told Monday.

Dr. William Sheldon of the University of Syracuse, N.Y., made the prediction before the school inspectors' section of the centennial convention. "Because of the advances in television and radio, the advent of teaching machines and the rapid growth of population, schools can no longer be content to operate as they have in the past," he said.

"We need to plan now for the classroom of tomorrow. Some day it will be a class dominated by television and radio, and it is felt that teachers will become tutors and that efficient learning will be implemented by teaching machines."

"Machines are already available that facilitate the learning process and are particularly adapted to learning reading vocabulary."

Victoria CCF Constituency Association last night picked four delegates and two alternates to attend the provincial convention in Vancouver this weekend.

Delegates are Mrs. May Campbell, vice-president of the association; Charles Lake, organizing secretary; William Resolutions to go to the convention include one supporting the Cuban revolution and condemning "outside interference" and one urging reduction in cost of financing senior citizens' housing.

But Idea Must Be Good

Oak Bay Will Listen To Breakwater Plan

Oak Bay is ready to listen to any offer the federal government might make on splitting costs of surfacing Turkey Head breakwater, but it will have to be a good one.

"We would like to see it completely covered, suitable as a walk," Reeve George Murdoch said last night. "But there is more than 700 feet of breakwater, and it would be too expensive to do alone. If the federal government wants to offer to share the cost we would be only too happy to listen, but the offer would have to be good."

At the moment the nearly-completed breakwater is surfaced by huge boulders, which the reeve, council and some of the public consider a potential danger to children.

Victoria Conservative MP A. DeB. McPhillips had said Saturday the federal government would not object to the municipality adding a walkway to the project. However this cannot be done for at least a year, when the rocks have settled permanently.

In the meantime, warning signs will probably be erected to keep children off the breakwater.

Two Killers, Tests Show

OTTAWA, Ill. (AP)—Science has produced evidence by Sheriff Ray Eutsey, who that two men, not one, killed the wives of three business executives in Starved Rock State Park.

This was disclosed Monday by Sheriff Ray Eutsey, who termed it the best lead in the case thus far.

The brown hair came from victims and the glove of an adult male. The blonde hair also came from a male, but the officer did not use the term "adult" in his report.

Garden Notes

Absolutely No Strings

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

In my Easter Sunday column, I told you the story of Nemesis "Sutton's Hybrid," the jewel-like flower from Northern Rhodesia which is attracting so much attention and comment at Banff and Lake Louise. I offered to send a packet of 50 or 60 seeds of this attractive annual to any of my readers who would like to try them out, and this offer still stands.

Once again I'd like to make it perfectly clear that there are no strings to this offer—no proof-of-purchase, no boxtops or reasonable facsimiles, no subscription schemes, no gimmicks of any kind. When I say these seeds are yours for the asking, I mean exactly that.

You don't even have to be a regular Colonist reader or subscriber to get your free Nemesis seeds, nor do you need to send in the attached coupon—the coupon is there merely for your convenience, and a letter will serve just as well to bring you your seeds. I'd appreciate your help, therefore, in spreading the good word among your friends and neighbors that they, too, can get in on the deal, with or without a Colonist coupon.

I expect many thousands of gardening fans will be asking for these free seeds, and handling this quantity of mail poses a few problems. You can help a lot if you will observe the following rules:

First, be sure to enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope to carry your Nemesis seeds back to you. When your letter is received, our Colonist girls will take out your self-addressed envelope, slip a packet of seeds in it and mail it right back to you.

Because of the production-line character of this mail-handling operation, it would be better if you didn't ask me any gardening questions in your seed letter, as a letter which requires a reply tends to gum up the works. If you find yourself in real need of gardening information, or advice while this offer is on, write me a separate letter.

Our girls will pick it out of the seed mail and send it over to my home to be answered.

I'd appreciate it, too, if you would make a point of letting me know just how you make out with these Nemesis seeds. This particular strain of Nemesis is still so new that anything can happen and I am most anxious to learn how the plants grow for you and whether any unusually attractive color combinations turn up.

Nemesis seeds are about the size and shape of tomato seeds and, while they could be sown and grown outdoors, the tiny seedlings could take quite a beating from heavy wind or rain. For this reason, I think there is some advantage in starting them into growth either indoors in a sunny window or under the protection of a coldframe, to be planted out when big enough to resist the weather.

In tomorrow's column, I'll be describing a simple method of sowing the seeds and raising the seedling plants.

Next Best Thing to Paris

Pierre Crenesse is the director of the French Broadcasting System in North America, a branch of Radio Diffusion Television Francaise, which is something called the French BBC and other times—unfairly, M. Crenesse is called Radio Confusion Francaise.

On April 27 (channel 4, 6-7 p.m. PST) he will succeed in getting on the air a show he's been trying to put on television for seven years—a show designed blatantly to get us to drop everything else and rush to Paris.

There's no substitute for being in Paris in April but, if you can't be there, the next best thing is to look at it. M. Crenesse is appalled at the way American television producers take a TV show to Paris and then hole up in a theatre or a TV studio and never poke their noses out of doors. "Invitation to Paris," which is the name of his hour-long spectacular, will have as its setting the 3,000-year-old stones of Paris itself.

"We will have Maurice Chevalier singing from the steps of the Opera, surrounded by the 12 famous Paris models and the Garde Republicaine. We will have the Djinn, a group of singing school girls, singing near the Place des Vignes. Now, who but a Frenchman could think of putting these people in the Place des Vignes and who but an American director, John Schwartz, would think of putting a heart on one of the columns the singers pass?"

It'll be largely a singing and dancing show and every singer and every dancer is going to have some of Paris's marvelous and entirely free scenery as a backdrop. Jean Sablon will sing in the Tuilleries. The Jo Basile Band and Patanchou will play and sing respectively in Montmartre.

Viewing World
By John Crosby

Les Compagnons de la Chanson will sing at Notre Dame; Dalida, who is getting to be the new sweetheart of all Europe, sings in St. Germain des Pres; can-can dancers will kick their heels outside the Moulin de la Galette. Jacqueline Francois will sing on a Bateau Mouche and naturally the song will be "The Seine."

Other Paris landmarks you'll see on the show will include Place Pigalle, Palais de Chaillot, the Tour Eiffel, Arc de Triomphe, Arc de Carrousel, Sacre Coeur, and Isle St. Louis.

While the scenery is all free, the show had some unlooked-for items in its budget. One of the costliest: brassieres for the girls at the Casino de Paris for their number with Line Renaud. The girls have never worn the silly things—at least not in public.

Can-Can Dancers

"The weather is so crazy in Paris—one minute rain, one minute sun," said M. Crenesse. "Well, I have never had such luck in my life. We were shooting a scene in Montmartre and we wanted to have the streets a little bit wet—wet pavement there is so beautiful. So we said if we didn't have wet pavement, we would call the sanitation department to spray the pavement. Well, at 5 o'clock in the morning, it rained. When Jean Sablon started singing, the sun came out. Beautiful! You can see it. When we ran a boat past the Eiffel Tower, the moon came out—just for us."

The French, Mr. Crenesse pointed out, are very French about their broadcasting. "Surveys just don't work in France. We tried calling people on the phone to ask them what they were watching and the people all replied: 'It is not enough to pay taxes to listen to the radio, now we have to tell you what we are listening to. It is none of your business.' And hung up."

He added there are no late at night programs like our Jack Paar in France. "In Paris, at night, there are a lot of other things to do," said M. Crenesse.

Hollywood Today

By Sheilah Graham

Lots of Money 'At the Top'

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Oscar-winning "Room at the Top" is making a fortune for screenwriter Nell Paterson, who was paid $100,000 for his screen-play of "The Stepmother." Ingrid Bergman is interested in starring in this one.

La Bergman, Marlon Brando, Gary Cooper, Cary Grant—the repetition of these top names in movie casting will give you an idea of the name shortage.

But the movie producers for "The West Side Story" are looking for unknowns to put in the leading roles.

Olivia de Havilland's next big venture will be a TV series based on famous love stories, written and produced by her husband, Pierre Galante.

Nothing like romantic miseries to make a man lose weight. Ben Gage, Estelle Williams' former mate, has shed 30 pounds since she resumed with Jeff Chandler. Ben is keeping busy with TV and real-estate chores.

Frankie Vaughan is worried about the London singing date he had to cancel when he resumed in the Marilyn Monroe movie, "Some Like It Hot." And Wilfred Hyde White, in the same picture, is in a bit of a pickle because he was due to report to Henry Sherek in London on the 20th of this month for their play, "Settled Out of Court." He can't leave Hollywood until mid-May at the earliest.

Rory Calhoun with a bunch of scripts under his arm, at Frascatti's, told me: "We're doing an hour-long series for CBS, and maybe release them later for the movie trade." Rory's "Texan" will be a daytime show.

Robert Montgomery is back from London where he set up a release for "The Gallant Hours," his movie with Jimmy Cagney on the late Admiral "Bull" Halsey. Robert functioned as director only. He might act again in television. But not in motion pictures.

Alan Ladd's broken hand has healed to such an extent that he can now finish "One Foot in Hell."

Leaking Tank Truck

Didn't Dare Stop

Death Speeds Across England

MANCHESTER, England (UPI)—A leaking tank truck carrying 2,000 gallons of a potentially explosive liquid made a successful cross-country dash at high speed yesterday, not daring to stop for fear of an explosion.

Police cars and fire engines escorted the speeding tanker for more than 100 miles, clearing roads and routing the truck around main towns for fear of blowing up a whole area.

The tanker sprang a leak near Stratford-on-Avon around midnight. As it passed through Stratford, its driver shouted to a policeman: "Get help. If I stop, the lot could go up."

About 5 a.m. yesterday the final police escort from alongside his cruising truck, the Altringham police force, the driver explained that he was carrying ethylene gas to safely.

Priest's Joke Halts Airliner

BOISE, Idaho (UPI)—It was just a casual remark—meant to be funny. But nobody laughed.

Rev. Lawrence Banfield, a Catholic priest from Portland, Ore., was "just making conversation" Sunday when he talked about insurance policies and "bombs" at the Boise airport. He had neither.

But a co-pilot of the United Airlines flight overheard the remark. Instead of laughing, he reported it.

Flight 548, readying for takeoff for Salt Lake City with 32 passengers aboard, returned to the loading ramp while city police and the FBI searched for the non-existent bomb.

"It was just a casual remark," UAL Boise manager R. E. Gustafson said later. "It was a matter of him saying he had an insurance policy for $100,000 in event there was a bomb aboard. Of course, it was merely a jest."

"All the more disconcerting was the fact it was a priest—on Easter Sunday."

Tony Plans To Work

LONDON (UPI) — Antony Armstrong-Jones plans to be a real working member of the royal family after his marriage to Princess Margaret by becoming an interior decorator, friends said Monday.

The friends said Margaret herself approved the idea and will help out with the decorating business.

Armstrong-Jones has no intention of becoming merely another quiet male shadow, they said.

Margaret herself has a strong artistic bent and has decorated her own suite in Clarence House.

Armstrong-Jones' discarded photography was on the arty side and he has dabbled in dress designing and has been interested in fields allied with interior decorating.

The two are reported hard at work designing and planning their future home—though where they will live remains a secret.

Tony was reported planning to expand into hotel and commercial office decorating as well as home and possibly theatrical decorating.

Margaret's cousin, Lord Harewood, has just been named director of the Edinburgh Festival this summer and Tony may have an outlet there.

Show Business

By Dick Williams

On "Show of Shows," one of TV's high-water marks, viewers never knew what might happen with Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca in the way of unscheduled comedy.

On one program Imogene had concluded a solo stint, and it came time for Sid to appear. He wasn't in sight, so she madly ad libbed a skit until Caesar rushed in. He looked wildly disheveled, and although he was completely dressed in business suit, hat, shirt, tie and carried a briefcase, he was barefooted. And his feet showed on camera.

They played the entire scene in close-up with the crew laughing along with the studio audience. "Whatever on earth happened?" was Imogene's first question when they were backstage.

Sid explained that his dresser made a mistake in the sequence of sketches and put him into a leopardskin strongman's outfit instead of the businessman's attire. They discovered the mistake as he was about to go on and frantically switched clothes. But there wasn't time for shoes.

Legal-Cost Fund Starts for Rebrin

VANCOUVER (CP) — A member of the UBC faculty is organizing an appeal for funds to help pay the legal expenses of Irene Rebrin.

Dr. Peter Remnant, assistant professor of philosophy, said the appeal will likely be circulated among faculty members early this week.

Miss Rebrin, a languages lecturer at the university, is being held in Vancouver's immigration building pending deportation. The immigration department has been ordered by B.C. Supreme Court to show cause why a writ for her release should not be issued.

The hearing, which will also test the legality of the proceedings by which she was refused permission to stay in Canada, is expected to be held Wednesday.

Meanwhile, an appeal on behalf of Miss Rebrin to UN secretary-general Dag Hammarskjöld will be taken up by the UN high commissioner for stateless persons, who may

Four-Day Visit

De Gaulle
WelcomedCompliments
Exchanged
In Speeches

OTTAWA (CP)—French President Charles de Gaulle arrived Monday night for a four-day state visit to Canada and was greeted with a Canadian call for full consultation in all vital NATO decisions. (See also Page 2.)

The general, making his first visit here in 15 years, immediately responded with a compliment to Canada as a vital link in the chain of American-British-French solidarity.

SPECIAL JET

Gen. de Gaulle arrived by special Air France Boeing 707 jet airliner, after a 8½-hour direct flight from Paris. He was accompanied by Madame de Gaulle, making her first visit to Canada.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, in his welcoming speech after a 21-gun salute and guard of honor greeted the presidential party, departed from his prepared text to say:

ONLY IN UNITY

"Only in unity and in the closest of co-operation, with the fullest of consultation, will NATO become that unifying force on behalf of freedom that it is our desire to achieve."

The French president said that after being in the United Kingdom, and before going on from Canada to the United States, his visit here was "as it were, a chain between free peoples."

SO DANGEROUS

"At this time, which is so important—so dangerous, perhaps—for the world as a whole, it is essential to come here to renew contact with the government and the people of this dear and strong and vigorous Canada."

He concluded his remarks, all spoken in French, with the declaration: "Long live Canada, long live France, long live the free peoples!"

DEAR TO CANADA

Governor-General Vanier, who was Canadian representative at Gen. de Gaulle's Free French headquarters during the Second World War, greeted him as the personification of the France that is dear to Canadians.

"In these days, of unquiet peace, the traditional bonds of friendship and of kinship joining our two countries have been further strengthened by over 10 years of close association in the North Atlantic alliance," the governor-general said.

SYMBOL OF FRANCE

Mr. Diefenbaker welcomed Gen. de Gaulle as "the architect and symbol of a vibrant France."

Mr. Diefenbaker said Canada was happy to welcome the president on his first visit since 1945. Many changes had taken place since then.

"One change that has not taken place is in the esteem and love of the Canadian people for the French."

Then, in French, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"We welcome, both you and Mme. de Gaulle."

Shiftless Grasshopper

TORONTO (UPI)—When they hear the tale about the ant and the grasshopper, the ant worked while the grasshopper sang, most people automatically stick up for the ant. But an educationist said yesterday that maybe the grasshopper sets the better example.

Reds Come to Fore
As Liberals Seized'Well-Trained Parrots'
Turned Out by Schools

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Nova Scotia Deputy Minister of Education said Monday Canadian schools are being hamstrung by a superabundance of courses and are merely turning out "well-trained parrots."

Dr. H. P. Moffatt told the British Columbia Teachers Federation at its annual convention:

"We seem to be trying to develop the talents of all students simply by adding more and more courses and more years to the school curriculum. Teachers are crying out to teach and we continue to hamstring them with imposed courses."

Dr. Moffatt said Canadians should take a hard look to see whether they are getting the best value for the money they are spending on education.

Canada's education costs, he said, now are more than $1,000,000,000 a year, and only $300,000 of this is spent on educational research.

He said great amounts of money are being wasted by an inefficient system of grants aimed at preparing children for creative lives and deterring them from the pursuit of material comforts.

Exposure to physical stresses and strains, and learning self-control, he said, are helpful in this respect, whereas to protect children too closely is wrong.

Dr. Taylor said physical education in schools should be aimed at preparing children for creative lives and deterring them from the pursuit of material comforts.

It was skillfully organized, Leaflets appeared under the noses of police, passed out on native commuter trains and throughout native townships.

The records racket was disclosed after a gambler with a record of 15 arrests got only a $100 fine in court because the record given to the judge showed him as a first offender.

But Macmillan faced attack from two sides on the Blue Streak program, which had been a symbol of prestige and independence among Britons.

Labor made a motion of censure charging the government with wasting tens of millions on the project and with general mishandling of defence. The motion will be debated April 27.

At the same time, many government supporters were reported deeply disturbed that Britain may abandon its independent nuclear deterrent entirely and rely solely on American atomic and hydrogen weapons.

A complicating factor was the demand to do away with nuclear weapons entirely, as expressed by the 100,000-strong rally in Trafalgar Square yesterday, the biggest since the war.

Hearing Today

Top Lawyer
For Rebrin

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. Morris C. Shumiatcher of Regina, a prominent civil rights lawyer, has agreed to act as head counsel on behalf of University of British Columbia lecturer Irene Rebrin, it was announced Monday night. (See earlier story on Page 21.)

Making the announcement, lawyer Gordon Dowding said Dr. Shumiatcher was expected to arrive from Regina Wednesday. He said Dr.

Shumiatcher had expressed great interest in the case as a matter of civil liberty.

A court hearing in the case of Miss Rebrin, currently detained at immigration department buildings here and facing deportation as a security risk, are scheduled for today.

It is expected, however, that an adjournment of at least one or two days will be called.

During the hearing before Mr. Justice T. G. Norris, the immigration department will be required to show why a writ of habeas corpus should not be issued to provide for Miss Rebrin's release.

Miss Rebrin's lawyers will also seek a writ of certiorari. Dr. Shumiatcher is a former legal adviser to the Saskatchewan government. Since his graduation from University of Toronto and studies at Harvard University, he has given special attention to civil rights cases.

Referring during a press conference to a letter informing Miss Rebrin that her case would be taken up by the United Nations high commissioner for stateless persons, Mr. Dowding said this could lead to representations to the Canadian government.

JOHANNESBURG (Special)

—Wholesale arrests of this country's leading liberals of all races have thrown into the hands of Communists an opportunity for leadership out of all proportion to their numbers and normal influence.

As a result, apart from any worry this may be causing the government, citizens who are opposed to its racial policies and who would support a program of eventual multi-racial development are seriously concerned about two possible eventualities.

First they fear that reputations gained by Communists as the real frontline fighters for the natives may enable the government to represent itself to the world as waging a war against Red ideology with the real issues lost to view.

Second they foresee Communism becoming recognized by all Africa as the champion of the continent's oppressed peoples and invoking Moscow's support in trained workers and even weapons.

During the recent waves of arrests, Communists were able to slip through police fingers and in many instances instead of fleeing the country they went underground and began establishing contacts with the second or third echelon of native organizations, the minor leaders who had not been arrested.

Big evidence of what is happening is the distribution of thousands of leaflets calling for the strike scheduled for tomorrow.

It was skillfully organized, Leaflets appeared under the noses of police, passed out on native commuter trains and throughout native townships.

The records racket was disclosed after a gambler with a record of 15 arrests got only a $100 fine in court because the record given to the judge showed him as a first offender.

Korean Police
Fire on Crowd

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Thousands of anti-government demonstrators surging toward President Syngman Rhee's palace were repulsed yesterday by 45 minutes of police rifle fire.

The mob of university students and townspeople retreated after more than a score were hit by police bullets.

Students claimed six of their number were killed, but this could not be confirmed immediately.

The police opened up with rifles after the front ranks of a crowd estimated in the thousands crashed over a barbed wire fence several hundred yards from the palace. Rhee was believed inside.

It was the second successive day of demonstrations in the capital protesting the March 15 presidential election, which the opposition Democratic party has charged Rhee's government rigged.

Three demonstrators were seen to fall in the first burst of gunfire and were carried away. More than 100 rounds were fired at the crowd in the first volley, and sporadic shooting continued.

Earlier, police, with clubs swinging, scattered 250 high school boys protesting the March 15 presidential elections and a subsequent ban on demonstrations.

But Macmillan faced attack from two sides on the Blue Streak program, which had been a symbol of prestige and independence among Britons.

Father Still Hoping

DUNCAN — A rising young Victoria scientist with prospects of a bright future in astronomy was lost in the swollen rapids of the Cowichan River yesterday as he and a brother tried to shoot through in a canoe.

While police were preparing to resume a search this morning for the body of Joseph Daniel Francis, 24, of 3085 Colquitz, the young man's father, S. M. Francis, 4891 Prospect Lake Road, was clinging to the hope that his son might have escaped as he did once before.

SAW BODY

But the missing man's brother Edwin, 35, of 3830 Hobbs, told police he saw what appeared to be Daniel's unconscious body being tossed about in a whirlpool.

Edwin Francis said their 19-foot canoe overturned several miles below Skutz Falls.

Both men clung desperately to the overturned canoe as it was washed into an eddy and towed under by a whirlpool, police said.

The boat finally shot out with Edwin still clutching the side.

The water was so turbulent police refused to allow two skindivers into the river to search for the body. A long, narrow river boat, owned by Arthur Hancock of Lake Cowichan, will be used in the search today.

FIVE MILES

The survivor said he and his brother had shot the rapids for about five miles near Duncan several times before, but that they had never used the canoe before.

The accident occurred about 1 p.m. after the brothers drove here in separate cars. One car was left near Duncan. The other, with the canoe on it, was taken to Summit Road near the river.

Daniel Francis worked as a technician at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Saanich. He was married and the father of a one-year-old son.

Dr. Andrew McKellar, assistant director at the observatory, said Francis was highly regarded by his associates, both as a scientist and as a person.

He was educated at Victoria schools, Victoria College and the University of B.C.

NO STRANGER

Young Francis was no stranger to the river and knew its perils.

Friends recalled that he and another brother David, formerly a reporter for The Daily Colonist, had been thrown into the churning waters once before when they ventured down the same treacherous stretch in a canoe. They were able to swim out of the clutching whirlpools that time but they lost their canoe.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

There are new ideas stirring in the United States and the intellectual climate is changing before our eyes. The latest sign in the wind is a brilliant article by Kenneth Keniston in "The American Scholar," the Phi Beta Kappa magazine.

Mr. Keniston is 30 years old, was a Rhodes scholar at Oxford and is now lecturer in sociology at Harvard. He writes about "Alienation and the Decline of Utopia."

He starts with the fact that

Something Needed

These young people protest that there is "no longer anything to protest against." They want "something better than this" but can't define the "something."

What's missing, says Mr. Keniston, is a new utopia, an image of a better world, an ideal state of affairs to believe in and work for. They're unhappy now because all utopian thinking has been discredited

Escape Through Art

As to modern art, he feels that "there is a direct relation between the decline of political ardor and the rise of the arts." In other words, he sees our modernistic, "private" art as an escape route for those who can't find a social movement to work for.

"Men," he writes, "must be

Big Beds Found

OTTAWA (UPI) — When you invite a big man to stay the night, you naturally try to find a bed to fit him.

Charles de Gaulle has overnight stops in Ottawa and Quebec City in his four days here and stands 6 feet, 6 inches.

Officials at Rideau Hall, official home of Governor General Georges Vanier, found out that the main guest room bed in which de Gaulle will sleep there is jumbo-sized anyway.

It was a slightly more difficult proposition in Quebec City.

Lieutenant Governor Onésime Gagnon's aides checked all the beds, found none would fit and were giving up when they turned up an ancient relic in a dusty storeroom.

The bed is a four-poster, a century old and seven feet long.

Red Trade Outlook Rosy

Canadians Impressed On Visit to Russia

LONDON (Reuters)—Canadian Trade Minister Gordon Churchill said over Moscow radio Monday that he expected Soviet-Canadian trade to increase considerably as a result of the new trade agreement between the two nations signed in Moscow.

The pact obligates Russia to buy from Canada every year double the dollar value of goods that Canada buys in the same period from the Soviet, up to $25,000,000 yearly in Soviet purchases.

Churchill expressed his and his delegation's thanks for the warm and friendly welcome given them in Moscow. He said the progress achieved in the Soviet Union had greatly impressed them. Churchill added: "We hope that the development of Soviet-Canadian trade will help to increase that progress. We think that the outlook for Soviet-Canadian trade is good and it is very important that we get to know each other better."

"It is essential now that Canadian businessmen should meet representatives of the Soviet trade organizations and find out what they can buy and sell to each other."

Churchill and the Soviet foreign trade minister, Nikolai Patolichev, signed while Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan, a surprise visitor, looked on.

The signing ceremony, toasted with red wine, was held before television and newsreel cameramen.

Churchill said he had invited Patolichev to bring a group of Soviet trade experts to Canada.

NANAIMO — The Nanaimo zoo will remain open after the licence expires May 15 "just as long as the animals are there."

Operator Paul Hertel is willing to risk being taken to court rather than close down this summer.

SPENT ALL MONEY

"I spent all my money on feeding the animals through the winter and want a chance to liquidate in a proper manner," he said yesterday.

Hertel's licence expires next month and will not be renewed by the zoo committee of the provincial game department.

The department told Hertel to sell his animals before May 15. "I've tried and so far I've had no offers," Hertel said.

Asking price for the whole lot is $15,000, including the 11-year-old baby elephant, Suzy.

ON BLOCK

Also on the block are lions, tame cougars, wolves, coyotes, deer, elk, monkeys, seals, and many other varieties.

Hertel said that he was invited to establish the zoo in Nanaimo by the public and they should support him in his request to be allowed to remain open this summer.

"I'll naturally close down if I can get a decent price for my animals before May 15," Hertel said yesterday.

GOOD TRADE

He forecasts a good summer trade which would help him make up for the losses sustained during the winter months. He would then fold the show this fall.

"We are already averaging double the business than last year, even with this weather," said Hertel, watching the pouring rain outside.

DUNCAN — The Ministerial Fellowship Association is sponsoring a dinner Monday for 250 persons to start off "austerity week."

"The idea is to get people to realize how well off we are, and to make them realize they should go without some things to contribute to those who are not," said the Rev. Basil Hartley yesterday.

The $1-a-plate dinner will be in the United Church hall starting at 6:30 p.m. It is hoped the food will be donated.

"The association here feels there should be a review of the immigration question so that more people could be admitted to the country," he said.

CAMPBELL RIVER—Three persons — two men and a woman — are in serious condition in Campbell River hospital following an accident Saturday night on the Kelsey Bay-Sayward road.

Injured are Ed Warner, a broken pelvis, serious internal injuries, contusions and abrasions; Mrs. Warner, fractured left collar bone, contusions and abrasions and Vincent Johnson, neck injuries, believed to be serious.

A fourth person, Mrs. Johnson, was not seriously injured and was allowed to return home. Kelsey Bay taxi operator Fred Lewis reported the wreck. The car is believed to have failed to negotiate a bend in the road and turned over. Campbell River RCMP said last night the three injured persons are not able to give any details about the accident.

Earlier the same day, a car driven by John Thompson of Campbell River failed to negotiate a turn on the Island highway between Campbellton and Campbell River and sheared off a telephone pole near Nunn's Bridge.

Many of B.C.'s Secrets Die with Reporter-Historian

Bruce A. "Pinkie" McKelvie, 70, reporter and historian, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital on Sunday. Many secrets died with him.

He knew the bolt-holes and trick staircases of Vancouver's old Chinatown, the untold scandals and hollow places in the lives of celebrated people.

His half-century career brought him recognition as a top-ranking police and political reporter. He had worked for a dozen newspapers and written nine books.

But the veteran reporter's most fascinating story — his autobiography — never got into print. He poured out that story in a never-ending flow of anecdotes to his friends, who numbered thousands.

The veteran with the green eye-shade, the round, solemn face, and glasses to help his badly failing eyesight, charmed generations of younger reporters with his yarns.

He liked to talk about B.C.'s past and future, in idle minutes at the legislative press gallery, or in front of the fire in the rambling house at Cobble Hill where he lived amid a jumble of manuscripts, historical documents and Indian treasures.

In his time, the old master had worked for the British and Canadian secret services, talked a group of angry Chinese out of killing him with a knife, and ridden in a home-made plane with a pilot who had never been off the ground before.

He outfoxed politicians who tried to conceal news, covered everything from mine disasters to the misdeeds of the religious cultist, racketeer, Brother Twelve; had been a friend to premiers, police chiefs and men of the underworld.

Open-mouthed listeners have heard the McKelvie tricks of the trade; heard how Amor De Cosmos, founder of the Colonist, used to dye his red beard black; and how the Germans were thwarted in a plan to conquer B.C. in the 1914-18 war.

Bruce McKelvie and his brother, the late A. J. "Spook" McKelvie, were born in Vancouver when its population was 8,000. They used to pick nuts and hunt grouse where Vancouver's city hall now stands. They swam in a creek that ran down what is now Cambie Street.

That leafy Vancouver has long since been covered in a concrete overcoat. Bruce and his brother both became newspapermen in the new, roaring Vancouver. Both of them belonged to the breed of police reporters who were licensed to carry revolvers and were half policemen themselves.

Douglas Armour, a fellow-reporter on the Vancouver Province, hung the nickname "Pinkie" on Bruce McKelvie

Slamon Indians made him an honorary chief when he saved an Indian girl from drowning as a boy on Texada Island. He championed the cause of B.C. Indians all his life; once went before the B.C. cabinet as a spokesman in his capacity as a chief.

He took his first newspaper job on Texada Island at the age of nine — part-time printer's devil for the old Coast Miner.

Later moves took him to the Lady Smith Ledger, the Lady Smith Chronicle, the Lady Smith Signal (his own newspaper) the Vancouver Sun and the Prince Rupert Daily News (he was editor).

He worked for the old Vancouver World, became manager of the Vancouver Board of Trade Manufacturers' bureau, where he launched a successful "Buy B.C. Products" campaign; worked for the Vancouver Province; headed the B.C. tourist publicity bureau.

For seven years he was managing editor of The Daily Colonist. When on the Sun he wrote a history of the Liberal party, "which made a Conservative of me," he said.

He ran for B.C. legislature, losing to W. T. Straith by 90 votes; lost to R. W. Mayhew in a by-election for a House of Commons seat.

He found his greatest pleasure in victories over philistines who tried to destroy historic things. He had the carvings of a prehistoric race near Nanaimo set aside as Petroglyph Park; saved the life of Governor Douglas' cherry tree and waged a campaign to save many historic things.

Among his books were "A Short History of B.C.," "Hul-dogget," "Black Canyon," "Pelt and Powder," "Maquinna

the Magnificent," "Fort Langley," "Tales of Conflict," and "Pageant of B.C."

He was past president of B.C. Historical Association, and past grand factor of the Native Sons of B.C.

He gave his first child the initials B.C. — Bernice Catherine Monk; she survives him, living at Cobble Hill.

Also surviving are his widow, the former Kate Allen; a son, Douglas, who teaches school at Clearwater, B.C.; and another son, Donald Henry, at home, Mr. McKelvie's helper in building and maintaining the private museum where numbers of unique and priceless documents and Indian artifacts are kept.

Funeral services will be held at McCall Brothers' funeral home at 2 p.m. Friday. Burial will be at 3:30 p.m. the same day at St. John's Church, Cobble Hill, where Bruce McKelvie had asked to be buried.

Single Probation Officer

Skimpy Beginning Faces New Court

By R. O. MARRION

A skimpy start may lie ahead for a Greater Victoria family and juvenile court.

But a skimpy start, Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich said yesterday, would be better than none at all.

"I think the important thing is to get it established," he said. "We should recognize from the start, though, that later it may cost considerably more than indicated by the attorney-general's department."

A special intermunicipal steering committee is seeking further details on staffing and cost before making a submission to the Greater Victoria council on establishment of the court. But indications so far have been that the attorney-general's department will supply the court with a single probation officer for a start.

This is in sharp contrast with the needs as seen by a Saanich committee headed by Coun. Ainslie Worthington, who reported after examining the Vancouver family and juvenile court operation that on the same basis, a Greater Victoria court would need three juvenile probation officers and a family court caseworker.

Ready to Go Along

But Reeve Chatterton said that for the sake of establishing a court, "although a skimpy court wouldn't do the job it should, I would be prepared to go along with initially having just one."

On the other hand, he said, the provincial government would be the financial beneficiary of a family and juvenile court. "Keeping one boy out of an institution would save the government almost the cost of a probation officer," and he thought the attorney-general's department ought to supply more than one.

Glen Hamilton, executive director of the Community Welfare Council which has long pressed for establishment of the court, took the same view as Reeve Chatterton.

A court with one probation officer, he said, would be "grossly understaffed." To be effective, a probation officer should have time to do intensive work with families, he said, and "one probation officer would just be able to check off names."

But, he added, a court "has to get started, and any advance is worth while, although I think they will find at least four probation officers are needed."

Province Pays Salary

Of the costs of the court, the province will pay the salary of the probation officer or officers it supplies, and the participating Greater Victoria municipalities the probation staff's expenses and the salaries of the judge, the clerk of the court and stenographic help.

Offsetting these expenses to some degree will be the elimination of the municipalities' individual juvenile courts and the freeing of police juvenile officers from probation duties.

Provision of an adequate, well-trained probation staff ranks with selection of an able, interested judge in ensuring the success of the court, proponents of its establishment have repeatedly emphasized.

The reason is that the approach of this court will be based on "prevention and rehabilitation rather than punishment."

Its establishment has been proposed because: ● The unification of court staff and records will eliminate duplication and confusion, and the centralization of the records reservoir of confidential information on which to make sound diagnoses and appropriate treatment procedures.

Cut Down Cases

● Taking the place of police court in desertion and family assault cases, the family court with its consultative facilities would cut down the number of hasty, family-dividing cases. Records indicate the number of broken families is reduced when probation officers can assist before the necessity of a court appearance.

● Under the present system, juveniles on probation are required to report in many instances to police juvenile officers, and, according to a brief by city welfare administrator William Hoosen, it is almost impossible for a police juvenile officer to act successfully as prosecutor and then rehabilitation official with the same child.

● "Above all," the Community Welfare Council has pointed out, the provision of unified services of trained probation officers will allow far more preventive supervision of delinquents — "Many of these children are now sent to detention home or industrial school and are repeaters in juvenile crime through lack of proper supervision."

Cars Stolen

Thieves Foil Moves To Outwit Thieves

Steps to outwit thieves who made off with several sets of automobile keys from a city garage on Good Friday failed. The thieves returned, stole two cars and damaged half a dozen others.

An official of Empress Motors Ltd., 900 Fort, said steps were taken to immobilize used cars whose ignition keys were found to be missing after the Friday theft.

"But apparently they had keys to at least one car that we didn't know about,"

Cars belonging to the firm were crammed into the fenced used car lot in such a way that moving them was deemed almost impossible.

But the thieves scaled the seven-foot wire fence and managed to extricate two of the vehicles.

"The way they drove around inside the lot running into things I would say they must have been youngsters," the company official said.

He estimated damage to cars inside the lot at around $200.

One of the missing cars was recovered before noon yesterday but police were still searching for the second one.

He said he would not recommend that the egg hunt be ousted from the park next Easter, but that more rigid control of the participants be exercised.

He would also recommend that the eggs be hidden farther away from the daffodils on the southern slope, he said.

Jaycee officials, who regretted the damage to the park's floral assets, said response to the egg hunt was far beyond their expectations.

6,000 AT MOST

"We expected 6,000 people at the most, and we believe that close to 12,000 showed up," Jaycee president Peter Forward said yesterday.

He said the egg hunt, held this year for the first time, "is the kind of event which we can only learn from by doing it. I'm sure the park officials appreciate this."

Chief Constable John Blackstock said yesterday that no decision has been made on the disposition of names of some of the flower pickers — "we may lay charges."

Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, parks committee member, was shocked by the behavior of parents involved.

Victim Pinned to Earth When Tractor Flips Over

A North Saanich resident was seriously injured yesterday when his tractor flipped over, pinning him to the ground.

K. W. Bompas, 8620 Ebor Terrace, was in fair condition at Rest Haven Hospital last night with chest, back and shoulder injuries.

A neighbor, J. M. Kennaird, said he heard Mrs. Bompas call for help and rushed to the scene. He said the victim was pinned under the tractor with the steering wheel and part of the engine housing holding him down.

Glen Hamilton, executive director of the Community Welfare Council which has long pressed for establishment of the court, took the same view as Reeve Chatterton.

A court with one probation officer, he said, would be "grossly understaffed." To be effective, a probation officer should have time to do intensive work with families, he said, and "one probation officer would just be able to check off names."

But, he added, a court "has to get started, and any advance is worth while, although I think they will find at least four probation officers are needed."

Province Pays Salary

Of the costs of the court, the province will pay the salary of the probation officer or officers it supplies, and the participating Greater Victoria municipalities the probation staff's expenses and the salaries of the judge, the clerk of the court and stenographic help.

Offsetting these expenses to some degree will be the elimination of the municipalities' individual juvenile courts and the freeing of police juvenile officers from probation duties.

Provision of an adequate, well-trained probation staff ranks with selection of an able, interested judge in ensuring the success of the court, proponents of its establishment have repeatedly emphasized.

The reason is that the approach of this court will be based on prevention and rehabilitation rather than punishment.

Its establishment has been proposed because: • The unification of court staff and records will eliminate duplication and confusion, and the centralization of the records will provide "a greater reservoir of confidential information on which to make sound diagnoses and appropriate treatment procedures."

Cut Down Cases

• Taking the place of police court in desertion and family assault cases, the family court with its consultative facilities would cut down the number of hasty, family-dividing cases. Records indicate the number of broken families is reduced when probation officers can assist before the necessity of a court appearance.

• Under the present system, juveniles on probation are required to report in many instances to police juvenile officers, and according to a brief by city welfare administrator William Hooson, it is almost impossible for a police juvenile officer to act successfully as prosecutor and then rehabilitation official with the same child.

• "Above all," the Community Welfare Council has pointed out, the provision of unified services of trained probation officers will allow far more preventive supervision of delinquents. "Many of these children are now sent to detention home or industrial school and are repeaters in juvenile crime through lack of proper supervision."

Selected Gardens Open for Festival

Selected gardens in Greater Victoria will be thrown open to visitors May 5, 6 and 7 for the spring garden festival organized by Victoria Horticultural Society. The annual event last year drew 1,500, many of them visitors from all parts of Canada and the U.S.

Thieves Foil Moves To Outwit Thieves

Steps to outwit thieves who made off with several sets of automobile keys from a city garage on Good Friday failed. The thieves returned, stole two cars and damaged half a dozen others.

An official of Empress Motors Ltd., 900 Fort, said steps were taken to immobilize used cars whose ignition keys were found to be missing after the Friday theft.

"But apparently they had keys to at least one car that we didn't know about," Cars belonging to the firm were crammed into the fenced

Damaged Statue Will Likely Stay

The Queen Elizabeth statue in Beacon Hill Park will stay there despite vandalism if Ald. M. H. Mooney, parks committee chairman, has his way.

Noise of the statue was badly smashed last week, and parks administrator W. H. Warren has said he will suggest moving the bust to protect it from future attacks.

A Beacon Hill Park Easter egg hunt which attracted an estimated 10,000 people Sunday set off a chain reaction which may see charges laid against some of them for picking flowers.

City parks administrator W. H. Warren said yesterday it was impossible to make an accurate estimate of the loss but he placed the number of daffodils picked by the mob at "thousands."

RAN WILD

"They just ran wild," he said, referring to one of the largest crowds ever to visit the park at one time.

Major attraction was a Junior Chamber of Commerce-sponsored Easter egg hunt which apparently got out of hand.

Police, who hustled to the scene on the heels of reports that daffodils were being stripped from one part of the park, confiscated many bunches of the flowers, took the names of some of the pickers, and finally distributed the blooms between Victoria's two general hospitals.

SALVAGE DAFFODILS

Mr. Warren said the flower-picking "spree" started when a few parents of youngsters participating in the egg hunt decided to "salvage" some of the daffodils trampled during the search.

Other people saw the daffodils being picked and started behaving as though the park had declared an "open season" on flowers.

Mr. Warren said the southeast side of Beacon Hill "is practically bare of flowers" as a result of the rampage.

Although daffodils were the main target of the pickers, their actions resulted in the trampling of thousands of wild bluebells which usually provide an arresting display later in the spring.

MORE CONTROL

He said he would not recommend that the egg hunt be ousted from the park next Easter, but that more rigid control of the participants be exercised.

He would also recommend that the eggs be hidden farther away from the daffodils on the southern slope, he said.

Jaycee officials, who regretted the damage to the park's floral assets, said response to the egg hunt was far beyond their expectations.

6,000 AT MOST

"We expected 6,000 people at the most, and we believe that close to 12,000 showed up," Jaycee president Peter Forward said yesterday.

He said the egg hunt, held this year for the first time, "is the kind of event which we can only learn from by doing it—I'm sure the park officials appreciate this."

Chief Constable John Blackstock said yesterday that no decision has been made on the disposition of names of some of the flower pickers—"we may lay charges."

Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, parks committee member, was shocked by the behavior of parents involved.

Boy Falls 30 Feet To Water

"I felt myself falling backwards, I bounced off a couple of rocks, and I was unconscious."

Gordon Ross neglected to add that he was also extremely lucky, but the 13-year-old boy probably realized it as he lay in St. Joseph's Hospital last night. It's not often someone can fall 30 feet off a cliff into shallow water and escape with a few cuts and abrasions.

Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ian M. Ross, 2861 Rockwell, did it yesterday about 2.15 p.m. at Finlayson Arm about halfway to Brentwood. An unidentified fisherman took him to Hall's Boathouse, and from there he was rushed to hospital by Langford ambulance.

Gordon, his brother David, 15, and Angus, Stanfield, 14, of Tait Street, were out in a small boat off Finlayson Arm trying to reach Brentwood. When the motor failed, David stayed with the boat trying to restart it while Angus and Gordon climbed along the rocks on shore.

Victim Pinned to Earth When Tractor Flips Over

A North Saanich resident was seriously injured yesterday when his tractor flipped over, pinning him to the ground.

K. W. Bompas, 8620 Ebor Terrace, was in fair condition at Rest Haven Hospital last night with chest, back and shoulder injuries.

A neighbor, J. M. Kennaird, said he heard Mrs. Bompas call for help and rushed to the scene. He said the victim was pinned under the tractor with the steering wheel and part of the engine housing holding him down.

De Gaulle

Vital Visit Begins

OTTAWA (CP)—French President Charles de Gaulle arrived Monday night for a four-day state visit to Canada and was greeted with a Canadian call for full consultation in all vital NATO decisions. (See also Page 2.)

The general, making his first visit here in 15 years, immediately responded with a compliment to Canada as a vital link in the chain of American-British-French solidarity.

SPECIAL JET

Gen. de Gaulle arrived by special Air France Boeing 707 jet airliner, after a 8½-hour direct flight from Paris. He was accompanied by Madame de Gaulle, making her first visit to Canada.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, in his welcoming speech after a 21-gun salute and guard of honor greeted the presidential party, departed from his prepared text to say:

ONLY IN UNITY

"Only in unity and in the closest of co-operation, with the fullest of consultation, will NATO become that unifying force on behalf of freedom that it is our desire to achieve."

The French president said that after being in the United Kingdom, and before going on from Canada to the United States, his visit here was "as it were, a chain between free peoples."

SO DANGEROUS

"At this time, which is so important—so dangerous, perhaps—for the world as a whole, it is essential to come here to renew contact with the government and the people of this dear and strong and vigorous Canada."

He concluded his remarks, all spoken in French, with the declaration: "Long live Canada, long live France, long live the free peoples!"

DEAR TO CANADA

Governor-General Vanier, who was Canadian representative at Gen. de Gaulle's Free French headquarters during the Second World War, greeted him as the personification of the France that is dear to Canadians.

"In these days of unquiet peace the traditional bonds of friendship and of kinship joining our two countries have been further strengthened by over 10 years of close association in the North Atlantic alliance," the governor-general said.

'Well-Trained Parrots' Turned Out by Schools

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Nova Scotia deputy minister of education said Monday Canadian schools are being hamstrung by a super-abundance of courses and are merely turning out "well-trained parrots."

Dr. H. P. Moffatt told the British Columbia Teachers Federation at its annual convention:

"We seem to be trying to develop the talents of all students simply by adding more and more courses and more years to the school curriculum. Teachers are crying out to teach and we continue to hamstring them with imposed courses."

Dr. Moffatt said Canadians should take a hard look to see whether they are getting the best value for the money they are spending on education.

Canada's education costs, he said, now are more than $17000.000.000 a year, and only $500.000 of this is spent on educational research.

He said great amounts of money are being wasted by an inefficient system of grants.

Hearing Today

Expert Joins Rebrin Case

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. Morris C. Shumiatcher of Regina, a prominent civil rights lawyer, has agreed to act as head counsel on behalf of University of British Columbia lecturer Irene Rebrin, it was announced Monday night. (See earlier story on Page 26.)

Making the announcement, lawyer Gordon Dowding said Dr. Shumiatcher was expected to arrive from Regina Wednesday. He said Dr. Shumiatcher had expressed great interest in the case as a matter of civil liberty.

A court hearing in the case of Miss Rebrin, currently detained at immigration department buildings here and facing deportation as a security risk, is scheduled for today.

It is expected, however, that an adjournment of at least one or two days will be called.

During the hearing before Mr. Justice T. G. Norris, the immigration department will be required to show why a writ of habeas corpus should not be issued to provide for Miss Rebrin's release.

Miss Rebrin's lawyers will also seek a writ of certiorari. Dr. Shumiatcher is a former legal adviser to the Saskatchewan government. Since his graduation from University of Toronto and studies at Harvard University he has given special attention to civil rights cases.

Referring during a press conference to a letter informing Miss Rebrin that her case would be taken up by the United Nations high commissioner for stateless persons, Mr. Dowding said this could lead to representations to the Canadian government.

Korean Police Fire on Crowd

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Thousands of anti-government demonstrators surging toward President Syngman Rhee's palace were repulsed yesterday by 45 minutes of police rifle fire.

The mob of university students and townspeople retreated after more than a score were hit by police bullets.

Students claimed six of their number were killed, but this could not be confirmed immediately.

The police opened up with rifles after the front ranks of a crowd estimated in the thousands crashed over a barbed wire fence several hundred yards from the palace. Rhee was believed inside.

It was the second successive day of demonstrations in the capital protesting the March 15 presidential election, which the opposition Democratic party has charged Rhee's government rigged.

Three demonstrators were seen to fall in the first burst of gunfire and were carried away. More than 100 rounds were fired at the crowd in the first volley, and sporadic shooting continued.

Earlier, police, with clubs swinging, scattered 250 high school boys protesting the March 15 presidential elections and a subsequent ban on demonstrations.

Father Still Hoping

DUNCAN — A rising young Victoria scientist with prospects of a bright future in astronomy was lost in the swollen rapids of the Cowichan River yesterday as he and a brother tried to shoot through in a canoe.

While police were preparing to resume a search this morning for the body of Joseph Daniel Francis, 24, of 3085 Colquitz, the young man's father, S. M. Francis, 4891 Prospect Lake Road, was clinging to the hope that his son might have escaped as he did once before.

SAW BODY

But the missing man's brother Edwin, 35, of 3930 Hobbs, told police he saw what appeared to be Daniel's unconscious body being tossed about in a whirlpool.

Edwin Francis said their 19-foot canoe overturned several miles below Skutz Falls. Both men clung desperately to the overturned canoe as it was washed into an eddy and towed under by a whirlpool, police said.

The boat finally shot out with Edwin still clutching the side.

The water was so turbulent police refused to allow two skindivers into the river to search for the body. A long, narrow river boat, owned by Arthur Hancock of Lake Cowichan, will be used in the search today.

FIVE MILES

The survivor said he and his brother had shot the rapids for about five miles near Duncan several times before, but that they had never used the canoe before.

The accident occurred about 1 p.m. after the brothers drove here in separate cars. One car was left near Duncan. The other, with the canoe on it, was taken to Summit Road near the river.

Daniel Francis worked as a technician at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Saanich. He was married and the father of a one-year-old son.

Dr. Andrew McKellar, assistant director at the observatory, said Francis was highly regarded by his associates, both as a scientist and as a person.

He was educated at Victoria schools, Victoria College and the University of B.C.

NO STRANGER

Young Francis was no stranger to the river and knew its perils.

Friends recalled that he and another brother David, formerly a reporter for The Daily Colonist, had been thrown into the churning waters once before, in 1958, when they tried in a canoe. They were able to swim out of the clutching whirlpools that time but they lost their canoe.

Shiftless Grasshopper May Have Right Idea

TORONTO (UPI)—When they hear the fable about the ant and the grasshopper, the ant worked while the grasshopper sang, most people automatically stick up for the ant. But an educationist said yesterday that maybe the grasshopper sets the better example.

Dr. R. G. Taylor, of Edmonton, Alta., told the physical education section of the Ontario Education Association that there is no evidence in the long run that people should devote themselves to providing for tomorrow.

"What did the ant achieve," he asked, "except more ants?" On the other hand, he argued, the singing grasshopper was expressing itself creatively, and therefore devoting itself to experiencing life.

Dr. Taylor said physical education in schools should be aimed at preparing children for creative lives and keeping them from the pursuit of material comforts.

Exposure to physical stresses and strains, and learning self-control, he said, are helpful in this respect, whereas to protect children too closely is wrong.
